

Council backs Hyland Crest changes

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

County council has endorsed the changes being implemented by Hyland Crest's administration and board of management.

After hearing presentations from the county-owned nursing home's unions and administration, council spent an hour in-camera discussing the proposal to lay off five health care aids and replace them with Registered Nursing Assistants.

Although no member of the public was allowed to hear the discussion, Warden George Simmons later told The Echo that it was felt that as the needs of the residents become more complex, "we need the quality of care so we can adapt to these needs."

RNAs have four times as much training as the HCAs and are allowed to do more jobs.

As well, Simmons said that Hyland Crest as the fourth highest use of medication in the province and "the days of drug-ging people are over."

The only dissenting voice came from Lutterworth Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon, who did not say why he disagreed with the motion to support the administration in the ongoing labour dispute.

In her presentation, Sharon Crowe, president of Local 1225 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said "the most regrettable thing here today is that none of this should be taking place."

"We all want the best for our resident people. We all want our jobs and we are all willing, given the opportunity of discussion, to improve ourselves by education, upgrading. This is a small, intimate community. The majority of us are on a first name basis with the leaders of our community sat here today and with business people. Tell us, the people, what you want in a manner more suitable to people respecting people. Make a reasonable, respectable decision based on the input here today. Make the resident people happy by having happy caregivers attend their needs. The only alternative is an institution. Do you want your loved ones in an institution?"

Crowe accused Administrator Rheta Jones and Director of Nursing Phyllis Hiltz-Bontje (Bonjay) of having "a dictatorial management system" which does not recognize the union's collective agreement.

She also listed many grievances the union has filed with management, grievances the union feels are being ignored.

"How can one communicate with a person who has the attitude 'watch it or else,'" Crowe said in her four-page presentation. "You have all been made aware of the unprecedented number of grievances. I assure you none of them were considered as trivia by the PEOPLE that put them in."

Hyland Crest says that to capitalize on new funding formulas it must document its ability to provide higher levels of care. It must also have precise care plans which set out the goals and

Pizza owner flips over his arcade licence fee

by JANET HURLEY
Staff Reporter

It could be game over for the owner of Perino's Pizza if he is forced to renew his licence to operate his video arcade.

Herschel Jacobs says he cannot afford to pay the annual licence fee being imposed on him by Dysart et al. According to Bylaw 91-39, anyone operating a "place of amusement" must pay $500 for the first four amusement machines and $25 for each additional machine.

Jacobs, who has 12 games as well as a pool table and kiddie rides in his pizza place, said the fee is one of the highest in the province and there is just no way he can come up with the money.

"The vendor who supplies the games has machines in areas from the Niagara region to north of Haliburton. When I told him how much I had to pay, he almost flipped. He said my fee was incredibly high...the majority of towns he goes into average $25 to $30 per year (for a licence)."

But Jacobs is not going to let the game slip out of his control. He has decided to fight the bylaw, and he is not doing it alone. He is tapping into the support of his customers through a petition that he intends to present to council in July.

Jacobs started the petition over a week ago and has collected more than 100 signatures. He said the support is impressive considering the petition is strictly for parents and guardians to sign.

"They're the ones who caused this to happen with the high fee. The parents didn't want their children to be hanging out. But now I'm getting a lot of parent support," he said.

The licencing fee was first put into effect in 1982 after a couple of arcade establishments became teenage hangouts and a source of trouble.

Last year when Jacobs applied to operate his arcade, he was told by council that the licence fee

At Wednesday's public meeting, the Haliburton County Board of Education managed to deflect anger over its $16-million budget onto the shoulders of the provincial government.

But local costs did not entirely escape scrutiny. Two-thirds of the budget pays for salaries, and taxpayers want the board to get tough the next time salary negotiations take place.

Although enrollment is up, the province's grant decreased by half a million dollars because, according to the Ministry of Education's complex funding formula, Haliburton County is the sixth richest jurisdiction in the province. Saying we have a high assessment roll and a low student population, the Ministry has forced local taxpayers to foot 75 percent of the costs of education.

That didn't sit well with board administrators or the handful of people who gathered at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School to discuss this year's approved budget increase of 4.2 percent.

"To say that we're the sixth richest board is ridiculous," said Dysart Reeve Chris Hodgson. He and his fellow county councillors are questioning the way the Ministry figures out the tax base, and have asked the Ministry to send a representative to the next county council meeting.

At least the county fares better than the Toronto board, which has been ordered to give back $80-million to the province. However, the impact on the local economy is still devastating. If grants continue to decrease, next year Haliburton may have to give back some of the grant money for the high school. And given the funding formula, the province

Weston bows to local demand

"It's a David and Goliath story. Sometimes David wins."

Truer words were never spoken by Highland Grove General Store owner Pat Furneaux.

It all started when at the end of May, Weston Bakeries stopped bread deliveries to all the small stores and restaurants on Hwy. 648 and Hwy. 62 south of Bancroft. Furneaux was outraged at the decision, which meant she had to travel 14 miles twice a week to pick up her order, hardly feasible for a one-person operation. She even learned how to drive to cope with the situation.

Last week, in a complete turnaround, Weston's Peterborough manager, Sandy Hayter, who made the original decision, assured area businesses they will be getting bread delivered twice a week for the duration of the summer. Some kind of arrangement is being made for the rest of the year.

In a letter, Furneaux promised to warn tourists and locals against buying any Weston products and in a particularly hard-hitting line, basically chewed them out for their thoughtless policy: "Having a monopoly in this area does not give a company the right to refuse the people the availability to the 'Staff of Life'."

"The squeaky wheel gets the oil," Furneaux has since discovered. "Sandy Hayter didn't realize what a hardship this was putting on some of the smaller stores. He said he's taken a lot of ribbing about this."

A DAY TO CELEBRATE: It's been three long years since these young people began their education at Victoria Street School. In that time, the world has opened up to them through books — which they can now read — and teachers.

Although it's been a lot of hard work, it all came to a happy ending last week when Jane Miller's class said goodbye to their red brick school. Here, the Grade 2 graduation class whoops it up by throwing their mortar boards into the air.

Changes meant to improve standards timetables for change.

Crowe said she contacted two people at the Ministry of Health who she said told her that the home has more time to implement changes. "They said) funding will not be reduced if documentation is not up-to-date."

However, the province's program supervisor for Hyland Crest backed up the administration on several points. Alan Cavell also wrote that some people are presently being turned away from Hyland Crest because the required level of care cannot be provided with just RNs and health care aids.

"Effective in 1993, the province will fund Homes for the Aged based on the documented level of care of residents rather than on the two levels of funding currently in place," Cavell wrote in a letter read at the county council meeting. "To maximize funding, your Home will have to ensure that residents' needs are fully assessed and that you have a written plan of care with objectives and time frames for various interventions. One way to achieve this is to allow RNs to carry out professional management responsibilities by assigning primary responsibility to RNAs for the pouring and administering of medications. This will promote resident-centred care as RNs will be 'freed up' to supervise/train staff, monitor and assess residents' needs and to coordinate the development, implementation and review of care plans that meet provincial standards for care..."

"Hyland Crest is not alone in having to respond to the changing environment. Many homes are attempting to increase the skill base of their staff to meet the needs of increasingly frail residents..."

"Hyland Crest, like other homes, has experienced residents who exhibit inappropriate behaviour. The changes in staff that Hyland Crest has planned will promote resident-centred care and should reduce what is often referred to as 'aggressive' behaviour by some residents. It should also make it easier for Hyland Crest to comply with standards of care. Ultimately, everything the province and the Home do should be designed to benefit the resident."

"Change we must," said Jones in her presentation to council. One problem is documentation of care and care plans are often "non-existent". Independent assessors will be at the Home in August and September to look over these care plans, which the staff is just beginning to work on, even though the Home for the past 12 years has known they were needed.

"We really have to move on. Time is of the essence," says Jones, who was sorry the changes have sparked so much controversy among staff.

"The operative word is change and what you might have summed up is there are two forces driving the change — the government, by funding and by standards, and the change in care requirements of our elderly..."

"We have elderly people in a very, very vulnerable position. We have to assure not only them but the government and relatives that we have staff who are able to meet those needs."

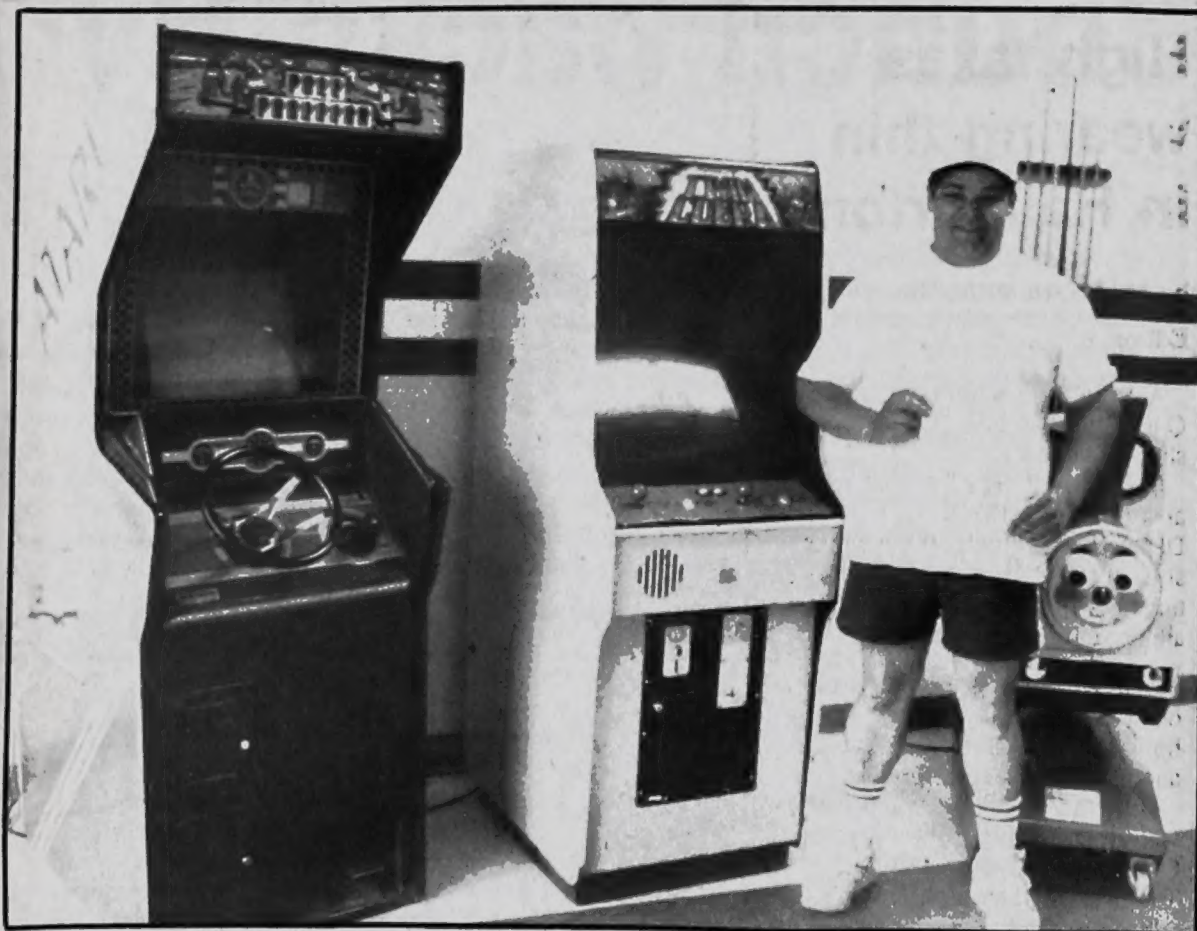

If the staff does not have the qualifications to meet those needs, "it places the elderly person at risk of not having those needs met. We have residents who are at risk... For a place that provides care to the elderly, that's not acceptable."

Asked on short notice, Linda Gonzales and Betty Gillespie of Local 213 of the Ontario Nurses Association also made a presentation.

"We are not opposing change, we are cognizant of a need for change. However, we do have some concerns," said Gonzales. "Many facilities are laying off staff (with the) hiring of RNAs to take over RN positions." While the union has been verbally assured this will not be the case at Hyland Crest, it has its doubts. "We have the right to question job security."

The Home has not yet posted the RNAs' job description.

The union also gave support to the health care aids. "We have a wealth of information placed in HCAs, who have provided excellent care and can continue to do so."

PINBALL PETITION: Perino's owner Herschel Jacobs holds the petition he has started to demand changes to a Dysart et al bylaw which forces him to pay a high licence fee for his arcade.

was imposed as a deterrent against opening such a place.

Jacobs questioned the fairness of the bylaw and told council that he was not impressed with it.

"But I paid in protest. I paid the moneys because I didn't want to rock the boat. Since it was my first year, I wanted to let the place run its course and get a good track record."

"I told them it would be well-supervised and I haven't had an incident since it opened."

Although the majority of customers are teenagers, Jacobs said he designed the place to have a clean, friendly, family atmosphere.

"I don't even allow smoking in the arcade."

And so far, the tough, leather-jacket stereotypes who tend hang out at arcades and cause problems, have failed to materialize.

So after establishing a good reputation, Jacobs was surprised to receive a letter in January notifying him that his licence was up for renewal and that he had to dish out another $700.

"I was hoping that council would have taken a look at the bylaw," he said.

Jacobs contacted Reeve Chris Hodgson who took the issue to council in June.

Council wasn't swayed and asked that Jacobs appear before council himself to present his grievances.

"There are two issues here," said Hodgson. "One is that he doesn't want to pay and two is that the bylaw is too high... We'll consider any concern over the rules but to change them for one person, you can't do it."

Hodgson added that even if council does change the bylaw, the new fee could not possibly go into effect until next year.

"The bottom line is that I have to pay the licence now," said Jacobs. "It has been an extremely tight year and I don't have that type of money."

"This arcade is not making any money for this establishment... To make $700 (from the games), it would take me seven weeks. In a month they bring in $500 and that's just enough to cover rent and hydro."

Group against drugs forms

What do you do when your teenager starts "dropping out" and you suspect the reason may be drug use? What do you tell your children about drinking behaviour? What if smoking seems to be the "in" thing to do? Who do you talk to when you find yourself with a substance habit you can't control? Do you know what's in your medicine cabinet?

A new volunteer organization has been formed in Haliburton County with the assistance of the Addiction Research Foundation and the Haliburton, Kawartha and Pine Ridge District Health Council to help local residents answer such troubling questions. The Community Action Group on Drug and Alcohol Awareness is planning a number of projects which will give substance use and abuse issues a higher profile and make information and educational materials more accessible.

The group has prepared a Resource Directory which will soon be available to professionals and community organizations.

The directory will list sources of educational materials, counselors and referral agencies, self-help organizations and treatment services which are available to Haliburton County residents. They have already distributed a number of educational videos which can be borrowed free of charge from Halco Video City in Haliburton or Larry's Videos in Minden.

A number of project ideas are in the works, centered around Drug Awareness Week, which is held every November. The group hopes to work with other community organizations to promote education and awareness of alcohol, drug and tobacco use. A seed grant of $10,000 has been approved by the Ontario Ministry of Health to help the Community Action Group develop addiction-related projects.

Anyone interested in receiving a copy of the Directory, and individuals or organizations wishing to participate in the group's activities are encouraged to contact the Community Action Group through Peter Dahl at 457-5173.

High taxes wearing thin in Haliburton

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

A Stanhope woman went to Queens Park to give Bob Rae the shirt off her back.

In front of 700 people gathered at a One-Day Tax Revolt rally, Debbie Hilkers took off the white shirt festooned with the signatures of Highlands residents who are tired of paying high taxes.

"They're taxing the shirts off our back," she says of her symbolic gesture. (She was wearing another shirt underneath.)

Hilkers and her husband Rob were representing the Haliburton County Taxpayers Coalition at Tuesday's media event.

"It was heady stuff," she said upon her return. "There was a lot of really good energy... I felt I was doing something, saying 'here are some of the frustrations of the people of Haliburton County.'"

A reporter at the scene asked Hilkers if she felt she was achieving anything with the protest. "If we don't do something, we'll never inspire anyone to anything. We can't just sit back. I'm not part of the problem, I'm part of the solution..."

Debbie Hilkers gives the shirt off her back

"The average Canadian has to get up off his ass and fight for less government waste and duplication. We're eroding away the middle class."

In the days before the rally, Hilkers got more than 100 people to sign her white cotton shirt.

Then, the Victoria County Taxpayers Coalition representative asked her to join her on the stage. As he rhymed out the reasons for taxpayer discontent, she dumped out Victoria County's bag of signed shirts, adding hers to the pile.

A five-day layoff begins at Children's Aid next week

The first of two five-day layoffs begins next week at the Haliburton Children's Aid Society office in Haliburton village.

From June 29 to July 6, the two-person office will be closed, with emergency services provided out of the Lindsay office.

"The Kawartha-Haliburton CAS has had to cut back expenditures in line with a reduced approval level from the Ministry of Community and Social Services," says a letter from Executive-director Robert Penney.

If emergencies arise during this period, people are asked to phone an answering service at (705) 324-3594.

Drain is pulled on popular Sky Slider

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Haliburton village may be gaining the new office for the county's social services department, but it's losing the Sky Slider to get it.

The cement track and water slides were being dismantled last week as county council voted, in a split decision, to give the department workers a bit more elbow room.

Steve Bowskill, owner of the decade-old Sky Slider, had proposed to add a third building to his Hillhouse office development. To provide enough room for parking, he has to cut into the area of the hill where the Sky Slider's booth is. Workers were on the scene Thursday to begin the job.

The two buildings of Hillhouse — an old house with a recent addition, across from the fire department and curling club — already house many social agencies, such as Parent Support Services, the Haliburton County Mental Health Centre, and the Women's Safety Network. Since clients of one often require the services of the other, it is felt the complex offers easier accessibility and privacy.

The present accommodation for the social services department is the basement of the registry office building, across from the county office in Minden. Not only is there insufficient room, but problems with the building are thought to be causing health problems among staff.

But Anson, Hindon and Minden's reeve and deputy-reeve are not happy that a county service is being moved out of the county town, and they garnered support from Lutterworth at Wednesday's county council meeting.

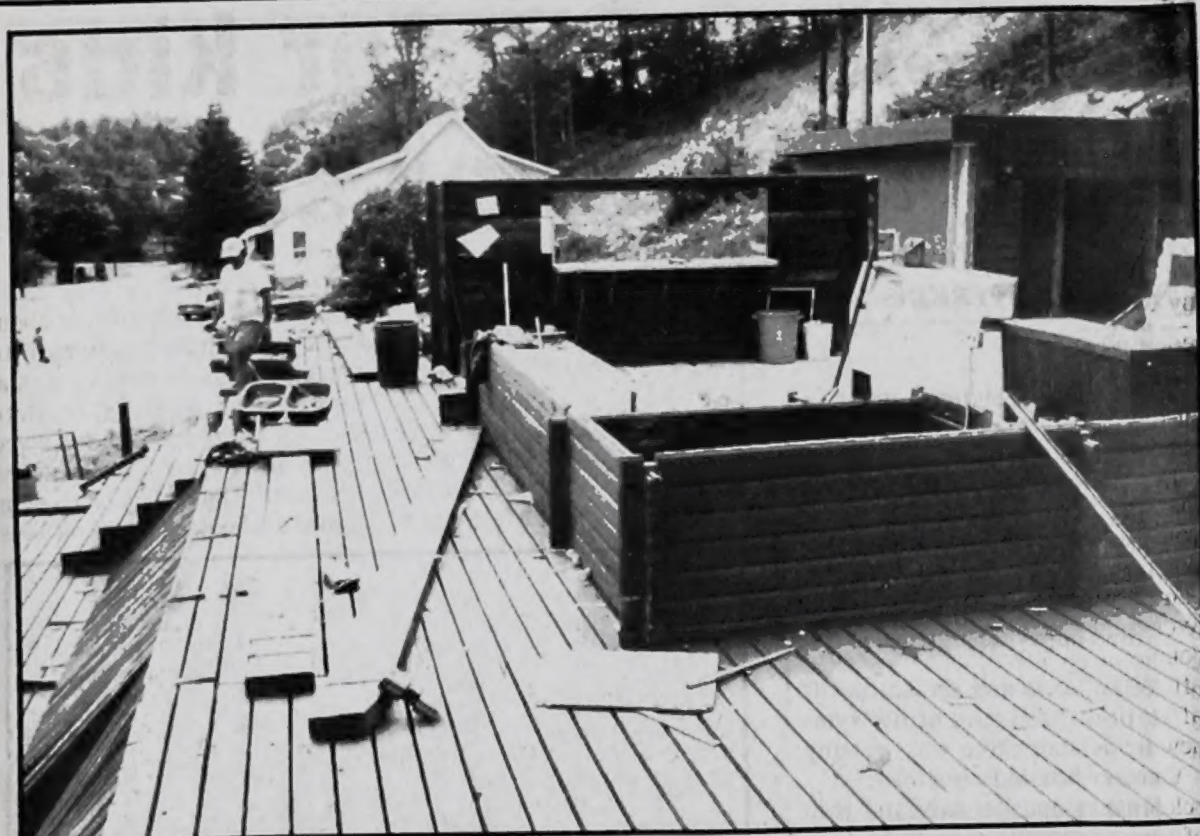

"We own a piece of property in AHM and we should be building in the county town rather than moving services out of the county town," said AHM Reeve Bern Berry.

Will clients become "muddled in the middle of the relocation effort," asked his deputy, Lewis Stevens. "(County) services should be together, not helter skelter. That kind of shot in our economic arm (to build the new office in Minden) wouldn't hurt our 30 percent unemployment either."

"If we're going to be leaders we've got to look at Haliburton County as a whole," agreed Lutterworth Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon. "Let's get on with (the new county office.) We've got the land, let's get our people back to work."

Two years ago, the county purchased a block of land on the Allsaw Flats as the site of the proposed new county office.

Although the land was in the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Minden village residents were upset the office would no longer be in the designated county town. AHM council came up with a proposal to sell the land and use $40,000 of the proceeds

A summer tradition ends with the dismantling of Sky Slider to build a new office next to the Minden community centre.

Even if the wheels were set in motion today, the county office would not be open for at two years, countered Stanhope Deputy-reeve Eleanor Harrison, who is county council's representative on the social services board.

The issue of the county building is separate from the needs of the department, she said.

"They have an immediate need and here's an answer for two years," said Sherborne et al Reeve Ross Rabjohn. The department can move into the new complex this year, and re-settle in the county office when it's built.

The rent is reasonable at the Hillhouse complex, said Glamorgan Reeve Beverly MacDuff, and it is centrally located in the county. It also has the advantage of housing several other social services agencies. It is hoped the Children's Aid Society and other agencies could be housed in the new building.

Doors opening for grads despite gloomy economy

by JANET HURLEY

Staff Reporter

Despite facing a depressed job market, the graduates of Sir Sandford Fleming's Social Recreational Planning Program have done rather well in securing their futures.

"We started with 11 students and now we have eight employed or in continuing education," said Bernie Nicholson, co-ordinator of the six-month program that prepares students for employment in the social work field. "We shot for seven and we've surpassed that. So we're very happy and we'll all have an extra dessert today."

Nine of the graduates and four instructors attended a convocation and luncheon at the Maple Sands Resort on Thursday. The students, all women, talked excitedly about the options now open to them after completing the program.

"I had been at home with three children for the last three years and I wanted to try and get back into the work force. I wanted to decide on what avenue to follow," said class valedictorian Kelly Harpley. "I did two work placements at CHACE in Minden and Extencicare...and I found out that I like working with little people and old people."

Harpley will be working part-time at CHACE during the summer and for the fall, she has enrolled in the Health Care Aid Course at SSFC.

Christine Warburton, who is hoping to continue her education, took the course in order to provide a better life for her daughter and to help her towards her goal of working with developmentally handicapped adults.

"It's a very beneficial program because it helps to build up self-confidence and self-esteem."

The students are required to take courses in behavioural management, life skills, computers and nutrition. They must also complete a 22-week, two-days-per-week, community work placement.

"That was one of the best parts of the program," said Tina Anderson who is waiting to hear about a job at a day-care centre. "I want to work with children and the program gave me a chance to go into different areas."

And for Shari York, the program allowed her to further her education and land that usually elusive "ideal" job.

"I'm working for the Haliburton Association. It's the job of my dreams," she said.

Fun, fun, fun for kids in the summer sun

by NANCY KUZMICH

Staff Reporter

There's nothing like the feeling of the day before the last day of school.

In some ways it's even better than the actual last day because you can still enjoy the anticipation of school's end. The last day can become pretty emotional as everyone says good-bye for a couple of months before heading off for holidays and, in the case of Haliburton County, often a new school in the fall.

Victoria Street Public School celebrated the impending arrival of summer with a "fun day" that included potato sack races, bubble blowing and dodge ball.

There was also an early birthday party to celebrate Canada's 125 birthday.

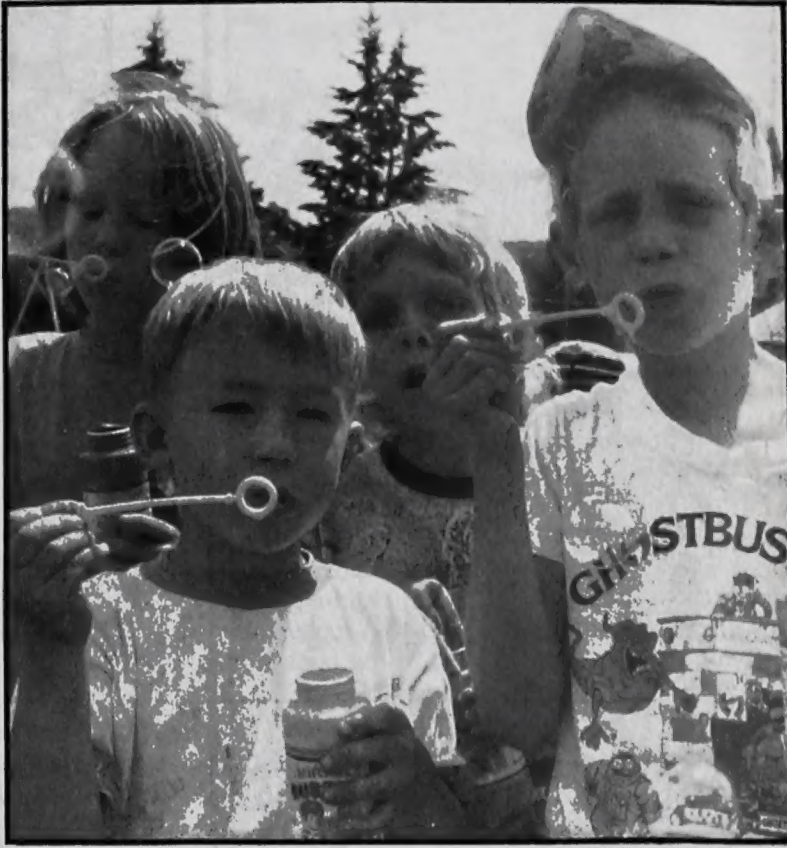

Two student volunteers from each of the school's 12 classes helped university student volunteer Sara Mowat bake the individual cakes, which were frozen. After the 12 parts of the cake (10 provinces, two territories) were put together, Heather Griffen came in and decorated the cake, with icing given to the school at a discount from Rachel's Bakery.

The entire student body sang Happy Birthday and sparklers were lit before the cake was divided up for everyone to enjoy.

Although almost everything was wrapped up for the year, only three of four Discovery Boxes had arrived at the school. Last month two Grade 1 classes and two Grade 2 classes each sent a box full information about themselves and Haliburton to schools in Moose Jaw, Sask., and three cities in B.C. To date Victoria Street has only received boxes from Ajax, Welland and Chatham, Ontario. Contents included a school video and pictures.

We all grow old

The reason why so many teenagers get in trouble is they think they're invincible. They drive at reckless speeds because only other people get in accidents. Teenagers never die, they just get grounded. By the time people hit their thirties, however, the tables are turned. The new question is "Why not me? Why won't I be the one who gets cancer, or becomes disabled in a fall?" Yet for all this acceptance of the frailty and unfairness of life, most people cling to the dream they're going to become a sweet old lady or a charming old man. Young children will hug them and every bodily function will continue as usual, albeit a bit more slowly. They shudder when they come face to face with the senseless dementia of Alzheimers. They hurry through the wing of the nursing home where residents are moaning or staring in blank silence. They turn their noses at the smell of uncontrolled bladders. Old age, the type of old age that's not seen in quaint television commercials, quite simply is never going to happen to them.

Maybe you will be one of the lucky few who "dies with your boots on", caught in the midst of action-packed golden years. But with the miracles of modern medicine, chances are your lifespan will exceed your body's ability to cope with all of its duties. Then what?

Imagine that for the past 15 years outside support made it possible for you, a senior, to stay at home. But last week you left the burner on and almost started a fire. Or you fell again. Your children are working so you move into a nursing home. All of a sudden, people are telling you when to eat, when to sleep, and even when to have a bowel movement. You share a room with three others, staff sees you in all your most private moments, you become resentful. You might lash out at a nurse who starts to undress you without warning, you might quarrel with those who impose unwanted rules. You may even do things you aren't aware of, which makes it even more important that others realize why you're behaving in such a manner.

A measure of any society is its treatment of its most frail and needy. Fortunately for the residents of Hyland Crest, by supporting the home's committee of management and administration, county council is recognizing that as our awareness of aging grows, we must have the staff who can respond appropriately.

The current labour dispute is not over whether present staff can be caring and compassionate. (They can be.) It's whether they have the qualifications to do the job that residents and society require. The health care aids seem to want either the home to provide the training, or more time to find it elsewhere. But nothing can make it any easier to become a Registered Nursing Assistant (or, as the union put it on Wednesday, one of "the strange hordes of starched efficiency.") It's a long, intensive course that isn't offered in Haliburton County, and sacrifices will have to be made to travel to schools hours away. The residents can't wait, and shouldn't be expected to. But that doesn't lessen our empathy for those workers who find themselves caught in the transition.

Despite our 30% unemployment, Haliburton County has never before had to deal with the new work place realities. Previously, our people were unemployed for evident reasons: declines in construction and tourism. Until now we've been insulated from the restructuring that has seen people with 30 years' experience being told they're no longer needed. Job security has become a thing of the past, and we, not only our employers, must take responsibility for our future. Canada (that's us) must be more competitive in business; workers must be better skilled. And for the sake of our senior residents, do we really want to turn back the clock?

Reform that editorial!!

TO THE EDITOR FROM OUR READERS

To the Editor:

I wish to say thank you to Janet Hurley for her unbiased reporting of the Reform Party meeting in Lindsay. As for the editorial — need I say more!

Until I read your newspaper, I had no idea I was part of a minority at the meeting — being a female that is! Was I simply a token female in a male domain? I recall seeing three females on the speaker's platform, I also sat behind a young couple with a small baby. I did not do a head count but I felt quite comfortable with the mix of people who were there. Where was your representative?

As Preston Manning said after the party did a survey — the top priority is law and order. When our then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau did away with the death penalty, he also said that life would be life for murderers. Now we are having them serving a sentence and being released from prison to kill again. Our prime example being Clifford Olsen who will be coming up before the parole board in a few years. I think it is time that we gave some thought to the victims of crime and the families of the victims of crime.

As for your last paragraph about "pride, covetousness, etc.", I am still trying to fit that into your criticism of the Reform Party. Maybe you can explain that in another editorial.

Margaret Martin,
Stormy Lake.

Hate literature

To the Editor:

Your Editorial against Preston Manning's clientele comes dangerously close to being hate literature.

You may well disagree with some of the reform party's program, but where is the good in trying to direct your readers' contempt at an identifiable group of people whose gender, age and complexion is similar?

The Lindsay meeting had fewer visible minority members than you would have liked. Should the organizers have bussed-in "visibles" from the Jane and Finch Corridor to please you?

Instead of berating reformists, what have you done to render politically active (this activity being a citizen's duty) your much lamented youth and poor?

Your "Editorial truths", I fear, also fail to "bring out the best in us".

Charles H. Lutz,
Kinmount, Ont.

Editorial is amusing

To the Editor:

Your paper is to be commended re the front page coverage of the Reform Party's Preston Manning's speech in Lindsay on June 10. Janet Hurley reported the meeting in a professional and interesting manner.

However, the editorial was anything but lucid. Upon reading this article, re the "villainy" of the Reform Party of Canada, I was initially quite indignant, that anyone in the media could pen such an unco-ordinated, vitriolic, unsubstantiated attack. For someone who was not present, and who in fact had to be urged on at least two occasions to send a reporter, I was amazed that you had such a vast "knowledge" of the Party.

I must admit that only a small part of your editorial was understood by this writer. That part that dealt with our Premier, Mr. Rae, for instance, raised a complete blank in my mind. Mr. Rae can cause his own problems: he doesn't need help from any one else. Nor do I feel that the Reform Party of Canada can be blamed for the positioning of articles in the Globe and Mail of June 8.

Eventually, amusement gave me a better perspective. So, in that vein, may I assure you and your readers that the Reform Party of Canada members do not have cloven hoofs, nor do we

THE CANADIAN IMPERIAL BANK of Commerce, at the corner of Highland Street and Maple Avenue in Haliburton, had an uninvited customer trying to enter their front entrance last Thursday. When I was walking on my way back to the office I was surprised to see a porcupine gently strolling along the sidewalk in front of the bank building. The Thursday afternoon visitor drew a large crowd of spectators.

Private James Dunsmore, a member of the Queen's Cameron Highlanders and summer resident of Haliburton, was selected to serve as Rick Hansen's aide as he accompanies the Queen during her visit to Ottawa June 30 - July 2, 1992. Mr. Hansen is the Canadian Secretary to the Queen.

While on the subject of street lights in the village of Haliburton, in my column last week I forgot to mention the fact that Del Sharp of Sharp Electric, Haliburton was in charge of looking after these street lights for a year and a half after Al Blanchard gave up the job. I would also like to mention that Del, who also did a great job of replacing these lights during this time, did not install them.

Congratulations are in order for Gloria and Nick Nimigon who will be celebrating their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary this coming Saturday, June 27th. In honour of the occasion their children and grandchildren are holding a dance and buffet reception across the road from the Arena in Haliburton from 8:00 p.m. to 1:00 a.m.

We hope that all boaters will keep in mind that the government dock at Haliburton, on Head Lake, is not meant to accommodate boats overnight. The dock is there for the convenience of those who want to use the ramp to unload or bring in their boats, or pull up to the dock to tie up while they are up town shopping.

Just a reminder that the Wilberforce United Church is holding a Strawberry Supper this coming Saturday evening, June 27 at the Lloyd Watson Hall from 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Adults $7.00, children 5 to 10 years $3.00 and under five free.

I really get upset when I walk past a telephone or hydro pole and see them littered with posters from one side to the other. They tell me it's against the law, so why not enforce it? I have, another beef: I see red when I walk down the street or into a parking lot and see flyers under the windshields of parked vehicles. No one should have the right to lift up the windshield wipers to hold the flyers in place. Besides being a nuisance these flyers will soon be on the ground and a detriment to the environment.

According to the latest Haliburton County Snowmobile Association Newsletter they way that volunteer grooming is working. One article goes on to say that the southern section of the trail system was kept in fabulous condition by their two Alpines. One was run by Roy Bates (Gooderham Trail) and the other by George McNair and crew, based out of the Head Lake area. Next is the huge improvement made in the Peterson Trail to Harcourt and the fabulous Whitney run. Did you know that the H.C.S.A. groomed all the way to Whitney, a minimum of two and as much as four times every week? The rail-line, Prentice, Gelert Pheasant Farm, Horseshoe Lake, Nesbitt to Pine Springs, and Haliburton to West Guilford to Eagle Lake, was kept in the best condition the Association has seen in years. They go on to say that the entire trail system hasn't been as well groomed since the membership was less than 1000 permits. This is a direct result of the efforts of dedicated volunteer groomer operators who logged record hours on all five tractors and both Alpines.

Twenty years of skipping stones

CITY SLICKER

DAVID CARROLL

PINE POINT, KENNISIS LAKE: It was twenty years ago today that Vasey representative Al Garden telephoned to inform my Dad that his offer had been accepted.

"Nonsense!" said Dad, when I reminded him. "It hasn't been twenty years."

"You signed the mortgage in June 1972," said Mom, leafing through papers. "That makes twenty years, alright."

"Jumping catfish!" whistled Dad. "Time flies when you're having fun!"

He's not kidding. It's hard to believe we've accumulated twenty KLCOA membership signs at the top of the road. But it's true. Twenty years have come and gone. Twenty winters, twenty springs, twenty summers, twenty falls.

Two hundred and forth months, 7200 days, 172800 hours, 622080000 seconds. Not counting leap year.

Here are a few highlights and lowlights of those twenty years, as compiled by my dubious memory. Please note that some figures may be wildly inaccurate, due to rounding.

LEISURE: We played 318 rubbers of bridge, of which 224 were won by the team sitting parallel to the bathtub.

Michael swam across the lake ten times, Andy skipped 2898 stones, Mom knit 56 sweaters, and Dad tipped the sailboat 294 times.

We spotted 14 bears, 28 Hummingbirds, 24 foxes, 91 raccoons, and untold millions of frogs and chipmunks. Mike swears he saw a UFO, but that was in '78, when that sort of thing was fashionable. Mom spotted 324 shooting stars, more than anyone else, and we were blessed to view the northern lights on 31 occasions.

We visited Haliburton an average of eleven times per summer. Dad spent most of his time at Emmerson or Haliburton Lumber, while us kids climbed all over the Highlander locomotive for a grand total of 190 hours.

In contrast, we rode the Skyslider only once, and it lasted about five minutes.

HEALTH: The family survived two cases of mumps, three bouts of pneumonia, one hernia, 87 headaches, 79 slivers, and 46 sore throats. Mom was the healthiest, recording a staggering 97.2 percent health average. Mike fell victim to car-sickness 34 times, usually on Sunday mornings, while driving to church.

LOSSES: The lake claimed two sailboat masts, one three-horsepower engine, two pairs of prescription eyewear (all Dad's), five Frisbees, and Mike's beloved rubber chicken.

We went through two pumps, one humus toilet, seventy-three balers, six sailboat moorings, and two Golden Retrievers who will not be forgotten.

CARNAGE: We trapped 84 mice, massacred colonies of woodroaches, and squished carpenter ants by the thousand. As for the mosquitoes and blackflies, I wouldn't dare to guess.

WEATHER: In twenty years, we witnessed seven hailstorms, 209 downpours, 127 thunderstorms, 32 rainbows and one tornado.

Further, twenty years ago, when the sun was still healthy and laced with vitamin E, we rarely purchased sunscreen. Lately, however, we've been pouring it on, to the tune of about three bottles per summer, for an all-time total of 10,700 millilitres.

VISITORS: To date, 467 visitors have been passed through our cottage, including Bell repairmen, insurance adjusters, friends and relatives. I invited three girlfriends up to the cottage, whereas Andy and Mike were smarter, and only invited two. Other guests included 17 teachers, a bunny named "Bigfoot", a toy salesman, an exchange student from Denmark, an aunt who specialized in telling dirty jokes, and two Anglican ministers.

FOOD: We drank 1286 litres of pop (mostly 7-Up), brewed 97 pounds of coffee, popped 177 bags of popcorn, and polished off 412 jars of crunchy peanut butter. In the early years we barbecued a lot, but since the family's recent conversion to vegetarianism, we've been consuming more grains and vegetables than meats and dairy products combined.

We also ate 2176 ice cream cones at the marina, which, in 20 years, changed hands three times.

EXPENSES: Over the years Dad shelled out in excess of $60,000 on cottage improvements, $25,000 on taxes, $18,000 on hydro, $15,000 on repairs and $5,500 on braces for us kids. He also chainsawed 62 dead logs and trees, and paid us kids a total of $10 each to haul them up to the road. Wotta guy!

"It was worth every penny," he says. "All the work, all the long drives, the cottage made it all worthwhile."

"Easy for you to say," says Mike. "You never got carsick!"

He's kidding. He's all too aware of the fact that in twenty short years, the cottage has gone from being a shack on stilts to a palace among the trees.

"We've come a long way, baby," says Dad.

"Now, if only we had a sauna..." says Mike.

"Give me another twenty," retorts Dad. "Then maybe."

PIC OF THE PAST

In the early 1940s each tourist resort in the

Wearing the old lifestyle

THE VIEW

HAD AN INTERESTING encounter with our legal system last month. Learned that the wheels of justice grind exceedingly slow — there's a quotation that goes something like that...

Actually, I learned a bit about myself, too. And it made me think about Haliburton in a different way as well.

I got a call from an acquaintance who had sold me some advertising space on Toronto bus and streetcar transfers when I was in charge of the advertising for a radio station there.

Back in 1983, we had a campaign tied into "The Better Way" slogan the TTC used, and it seems like an ideal medium for that particular campaign. We had a bit of a problem with the quality of the printing, and hadn't extended our order.

Turns out that this was why he called. It seems that the printing problems I had complained about were part of a series of problems he had had with the transit people.

Very simply, things to do with printing clarity, paper quality, the size of the ad space available and a few other factors were not as originally agreed to. Other customers besides the radio station dropped out, and he couldn't pay his bills.

He had a contract to pay a monthly fee for the right to run the advertising on the transfers, and when he didn't pay his bills, the good old TTC sued him. So he counter-sued them for breach of contract for providing poor quality printing et cetera — all back in 1984!

It seems that this suit and counter-suit had finally meandered its way through the court system to arrive in front of a judge and jury in a mere eight years!

I had written a specific letter of complaint at the time, and the fellow wanted me to go to court on his behalf, as an expert witness with forty years in advertising — one who had used his medium and had written at the time to complain specifically about the kind of problems that killed his business.

Knowing from previous experience how big business often likes to drag things out in the hopes that the little guys of this world will have to give up for lack of time or funds, I said I'd be glad to go to court on his behalf.

His law firm contacted me, giving me a general idea of the court date and time, explaining that it could be a little sooner if a case ahead of it was settled quickly, a little later if one of them got complicated.

Having got myself into this, I started thinking about actually appearing in court. A quick check of the closet showed I had lots of suits that would do for the occasion. As an executive in Toronto, you have to have a wardrobe.

One of the things about leaving that lifestyle behind is that, when you see what they are charging for clothes these days, you just can't bring yourself to throw suits out. You donate a few to the 4C's — and hang onto the rest in case you need them.

And, yes, I can get into these ten-year-old suits with room to spare these days, thank you very much. I've got the shirts and the shoes, the whole outfit, even the ties — and regular readers know how I feel about ties — and that's when I started having problems.

"How many other people who now live here do we meet in the streets of town who might have been something quite different in the past?"

Because I have only worn a tie four times in over eight years. If I was going to put on my "expert" garb, would I be letting the guy down if I didn't wear the whole uniform?

That's what made me think of Stanhope's former reeve Harry Davis, who turns out to have been a Hallmark card marketing executive in a previous life, according to a recent Echo feature. Known him for years, but I didn't know that!

How many other people who now live here do we meet in the streets of town who might have been something quite different in the past — if you dressed them up in their old "uniform"? If "clothes make the man," then you sure "can't tell a book by its cover."

I decided that it wasn't an occasion of sufficient gravity to break my "no tie" rule — but it turned out it didn't matter anyhow. After eight years of shilly-shallying, the lawyers settled at the courtroom door!

Harvest news can be surprising

NORTHERN LIGHTS

VIRGINIA MUENZEL

LIKE MANY FIFTY-SOME year olds, my parents were products of the Depression. So naturally, I was brought up to "Eat everything on your plate, there are children starving out there!"

I was never quite sure where "out there" was. But I knew that wasting food was a serious sin. Consequently, when I saw, on the news, that B.C. farmers are plowing their crops under because they can't compete with the U.S. market, I became very disturbed. After all, there are still children starving "out there." Surely, there's a better way to make a point.

Here's this fellow, sitting maybe ten feet off the ground in his multi-hundred thousand dollar tractor, sucking up hundreds of gallons of fuel, and spewing out pollutants to plow under a bumper crop of vegetables. Meanwhile, food banks all across Canada are unable to keep up with the needs of the hungry. Was this the farmer's unique way of celebrating Canada's 125th birthday?

I know this is a really wild idea, but why couldn't these farmers let the banks repossess all those money grabbing machines? Then, use the monthly payment funds to hire some of the out-of-work people to pick and pack up the harvest. If they still wanted to make a political statement by withholding the produce from the market, they could certainly make a deal with some of the food banks.

But it will never happen. Money has become a god, and besides, someone would figure their rights were being denied somehow.

Meanwhile, here I am with my seed planting fetish. Yesterday, I was cleaning out my odds and ends of old seeds. I found that I couldn't just throw them away. So I scattered them in a part of the garden we're not planting this year. There was a little bit of everything, from peas and lettuce to zinnias and herbs in that mixture. Most of them are pretty old and probably won't germinate. But I'm not worried, because earlier this spring I had a bucket of sunflower seeds that the mice had gotten into. I didn't want to put them into the bird feeders, so I scattered them in the area in front of the cedar rail fence. I figured the crows would get them. Two months later, there are dozens of sunflowers coming up. It will be interesting to see which seeds sprout in my new, wind scattered garden.

Ed and I watched an interesting David Suzuki program about wildflowers. Some people are trying to create contrasts to the perfectly groomed, weed and feed lawn concept by introducing wildflowers into yards and even some park areas. It's funny, because Ed has gradually done less mowing and weed-wacking, mainly for lack of time. Last year, we had this amazing mass of daisies where I had once planted squash. This year, in a couple of areas where I stood up to the weed-wacker, there are several wildflowers I cannot identify mixed in with the forget-me-nots, buttercups, clover, and violets. There's also some catnip for my furry felines, and some chamomile for tea.

Crazy fish story

SHARON LYNCH

AS ANYONE who has ever spent time at a cottage by a lake knows, insects of every description are plentiful. They can be found crawling, flying, buzzing and squirming in every possible place. Martin did not like spiders. While he found mosquitoes annoying and caterpillars disgusting, dragonflies unnerving and worms unavoidable, he found spiders scary. From tiny little spiders descending on magical strings before his very nose, to long legged greed spiders that moved with a slow grace: Martin wanted nothing to do with them. Unfortunately Martin also loved his cottage. So in order to enjoy the one, he had to risk the other. But the worst, most terrifying of all, were dock spiders.

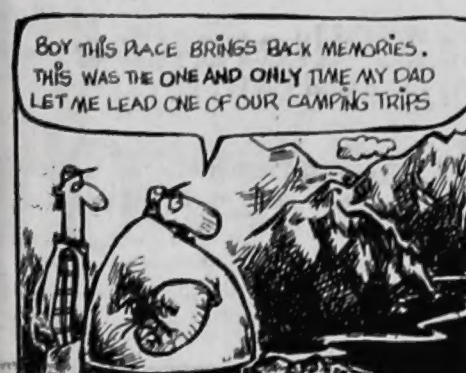

It therefore seemed only logical to Martin that the best way to avoid dock spiders was to avoid the dock. In order to reach the water, he would much rather pick his way over the boulders that littered his shoreline than take a smooth clean dive from the end of his dock.

It had been an unusually hot few days for June. Martin knew the lake would not have warmed up very much since the ice had been so late going out that spring. But the dark cool depths looked too inviting to resist. Donning his swimming trunks

Barry, Rosenberg tops in golf action

By DOUG KIRKHAM

It had been a dark and stormy week, but the clouds parted in time and the skies turned Haliburton blue for PineStone Golf League play.

Both the ladies on Tuesday and the men on Wednesday enjoyed beautiful playing conditions on the well-groomed PineStone Resort and Conference Centre golf course.

Rose Barry shot the lowest gross score for the ladies at 51 while Tiffini Cowan and Louise Packer were close behind at 52 and 53. Spring Watson and Connie Wood tied for the lowest net score for the ladies at 34, while Joanne Votterd shot a 35 and Betty Harrison and Lynne Johnston each finished with 36.

On Wednesday night, Ken Rosenberg led the men with a 38 gross score. Len Salvatori, Frank Powers, John Wilson and Scotty LaRue tied for second with 41. Nino Rizzuto shot the lowest net score at 36, Leigh Bull finished one stroke behind at 37 and Drew Carey, Dave Willis, Ken Evans, Roly Letourneau and Gord Pye all finished at 38.

HOLE IN ONE

PineStone saw its first hole-in-one of the year on June 13, as Jeff Strydiuk accomplished the feat on the course's 173-yard 11th hole. He made the shot with a five-iron and it was witnessed by Ron Mitchell, Doug Knight and Neil MacMillan.

Skaters are sharpening their skills

"Canskate" Skaters from the Haliburton Figure Skating Club recently enjoyed a month sharpening their skating skills in Minden during the Highland Skating School spring session.

"Canskate", is a learn to skate program for all ages to learn the basic skating skills. As each skater progresses he or she earns badges.

Congratulations are extended to our Haliburton Skaters.

The following skaters passed these badges: Basic - Trisha Hunter; Novice II - Shannon McKechnie; Novice III - Rebekah Consack, and Tanya Hunter; Novice IV - Katie McKechnie, Charlyn Irvine, Courtney Wilson, Rebekah Consack; and Proficiency - Courtney Wilson.

See you in Haliburton Sept. 8 to Oct. 16 for fall school.

Bowling action begins with senior tournament

Lawn bowlers participated in the Haliburton County Senior Games.

On June 15 and 16, eight teams competed in a tournament.

Winners of the gold were Bruce Armstrong, Nancy Moore and Lew Tompkins. They will go to represent District 11 in the Ontario Senior Games in Hamilton in August.

The silver awards went to Hal Burton, Eleanor Young and Hazel Maxwell.

Cy Heal, Besie Burk and Gala Heal won the bronze awards.

Thanks to Ross Farr, co-ordinator of the Haliburton Senior Games, and to Bruce Armstrong for running an excellent tournament.

Guild draws year-end profit

by JANET HURLEY
Staff Reporter

In the midst of difficult financial times, the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts was able to control expenditures and avoid a year-end deficit.

At the Guild's annual general meeting last Tuesday, Hugh Nichol, on behalf of Dawson Gray Chartered Accountants, reported that the Guild had managed a net surplus of $4,454, up from last year's deficit of $5,929.

"I think the organization did the best job it can financially," he told the members.

Administration costs, including salaries and capital expenditures, were cut back by $6,481 to $68,652 and extra revenue was made through Winning Wednesday, a weekly lottery, and the summer exhibition and sale. The summer sale generated $82,783 for the Guild, $14,077 more than last year's event.

"The summer sale was up from last year. It was extremely successful and it made up for other areas," said Nichol.

Two areas that didn't generate as much revenue as last year were memberships and donations. Memberships were down from $5,320 by almost $1,000 and donations were half of last year's total of $1,070.

"This is a reflection of the times," Nichol explained. "When times are tough, people cut back on discretionary costs."

Nichol and Guild President Maggie McClure warned the members that the coming year does not promise to get any better.

"This is another tough year and we are counting on all of you to continue backing our fundraising activities," said McClure.

Fortunately, the Guild has secured grants for 1992.

"When we applied for our grants from Dysart and county councils, it was gratifying to know that they feel the Guild is an essential part of our community and that our grants would be maintained at their previous level despite very difficult times," said McClure. "And although the final figures won't be known until August, we have been assured the grant from Ontario Arts Council will also be maintained."

Other business at the general meeting included the announcement that the Guild's Rug Hookers will host the Ontario Hooking Craft Guild Annual at the Pinestone in May 1993. The three-day event will attract up to 400 members from across Canada and the United States.

"We hope this will bring further recognition to Haliburton," said Marg Fedorchuk of the Rug Hookers group.

And Claire and Ken MacLeod were awarded the distinction of Honourary Members for their contributions to the Guild and Rails' End Gallery.

"Claire is always working at the Gallery and has done jobs at the Summer Sale for the past five years. Ken is often founding painting either props or walls...He was an active member of the Writer's Group and was one of the people who helped with the Guild column...I cannot think of a couple more deserving (of this award)," said McClure.

Former host of white supremacist rally receives jail term

The man who hosted a white supremacist rally three years ago will be spending the next year in jail.

William John Beattie, 50 and presently of the London area, was recently convicted of four counts of assault and one count of assault causing bodily harm.

Minden OPP say the convictions result from an investigation into assaults within Beattie's family that took place from 1988 to 1991. After a lengthy sentencing hearing, Beattie was sentenced to one year in jail, probation for two years and a firearms prohibition of five years.

On July 1, 1989, skinheads and members of white supremacist organizations gathered at Beattie's rented home on the Bobcaygeon Road, just north of Minden. During the weekend, which became a media event, a huge wooden cross was burned. In response, members of the community and B'Nai Brith, including some Holocaust survivors, held a counter-rally.

At the time, Beattie was married and teaching his three children at home.

Offers apply to 1992 new and unused, or demonstrator models purchased from dealer inventory. Offers valid for a limited time starting May 22, 1992 while quantities last and applies to retail deliveries only. Cash back offer includes GST. Financing offer available with no limit on the amount financed, to qualified retail buyers financing their purchases through GMAC on a maximum 48-month contract. Example: For $12,000 financed over 48 months at 3.9% APR, the monthly payments is $270.41, the cost of borrowing is $979.68 and the total amount to be repaid is $12,979.68. Assuming a rebate of $1,000 as the alternative, should you choose the reduced financing rate, legislation requires that the amount of the rebate must be included in the cost of borrowing in order to arrive at an effective interest rate. In the example given, the effective interest rate would be 7.45% APR, and the total cost of borrowing, including the rebate not taken, would be $19,142.6. Some conditions apply. Superintendent taking road to retirement

by JANET HURLEY
Staff Reporter

Whenever you get into your car and drive through Haliburton County, you probably never think of the effort that has gone into planning, building and maintaining the very road beneath your wheels.

But every time you travel along a county road — whether you know it or not — you have Bill Everson to thank.

Everson was instrumental in the development and creation of Haliburton's county road system back in 1972. And this month, after 20 years as general superintendent with the County Roads Department, he retired leaving behind a significant contribution to the community.

"Since he came here in 1972, he has looked after the reconstruction of every county road and has been in charge of the maintenance in winter and summer. The condition of the roads has improved tremendously under his supervision," said Bill Obee, county engineer from 1975 to 1991.

At a retirement party in the Minden Community Centre Friday — attended by over 150 of Everson's friends and colleagues — Obee reiterated Everson's contribution to Haliburton.

"The reason the roads are as good as they are is because of the guy we are honouring."

Twenty years ago when Everson applied for the new position of general superintendent, Haliburton did not even have a county road system. Jack Cox, the first full-time county engineer, remembered being on the committee that hired Everson.

"I had known Bill for a number of years and I knew he was very conscientious and did his work real well. I knew Bill was right for the job," he said.

Soon after Everson was hired, construction began. The provincial government put up $5-million in construction funds for the new system and it was expected that the money would last five years. But progress was faster than expected.

"We spent $5-million in less than 3 years...We got things organized in a hurry and with Bill's experience, he was able to take on a good work load," said Cox.

"We got less money and did better than Muskoka," quipped Everson at his retirement party.

Everson brought a wealth of experience to his job with the County Roads Department. He had spent 24 years with Miller Paving in Toronto. As superintendent, he had helped to build the roads in North York and Toronto and was responsible for the maintaining and stripping of Highway 401.

While Everson was far too modest to talk about himself and his accomplishments, his friends didn't hesitate to offer praise.

"He was extremely dedicated and was always willing to give more than anyone else," said Obee.

Cox agreed that Everson was a hard-working employee who gave more of himself than was expected.

"He's also very forthright. That got him into some hot water with the politicians up here. He likes to speak his mind. But he's very good-hearted."

And what will this driven, industrious man do now that the maintenance of county roads has fallen into the hands of the new general superintendent Larry Kent?

Rumour has it that Everson will be taking life easy — working in his garden, building up a workshop, going fishing and playing a few rounds of euchre.

After maintaining the roads for our convenience for 20 years, he deserves it.

Everson worked 20 years as the general superintendent for the County Roads Department.

PRICKLY BUSINESS: MNR firefighters Neil Burton and Wade Wood capture a porcupine that wandered into a quiet corner beside the CIBC last Thursday afternoon. They later released it in the countryside. Both men said they had no idea how the animal got there.

Job program offers future for the unemployed

by NANCY KUZMICH
Staff Reporter

Haliburton County has been selected for assistance under the Community Futures Program by the federal Employment and Immigration Ministry.

The Community Futures Program helps communities hit with major layoffs and unemployment. It builds on the existing strengths of the communities, allowing them to pull together and decide for themselves what are the best ways of dealing with their economic problems.

A Community Futures Committee composed of local businesses, federal, provincial and municipal governments, and community representatives will be established. As much as $600,000 will be provided for up to six years to help the new committee look at opportunities for developing and diversifying the local economy.

Haliburton County's Economic Development Officer thinks the first step will see the program consultant come to the area and meet with two or three community representatives.

"We'll find out who is the group of all the movers and shakers we should get together," says Mark Stagg.

After a committee has been selected, a work program will then be established.

Since the funding is up to $600,000, Stagg estimates there may be as much as $100,000 paid out each year. He says this will be needed for the operational and administrative expenses for the committee.

"That's what it costs to get something up and running."

He says the funds will probably cover salaries for a co-ordinator and secretary as well as office overhead expenses. And although this office may only be open on a part-time basis at first, Stagg says that with the important matters the committee will be tackling, a "nerve centre" is necessary.

"The fundamental purpose of the funds is to invest in and use for the creation and maintenance of employment."

Teachers' salaries must be watched: taxpayers will only contribute $750,000 to the $2.1-million addition at Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Meanwhile, the Hamilton board will get a $1.95-million grant for a similarly priced addition.

"It's generally recognized that the funding mechanism doesn't work any more," said Director of Education Brad Saunders.

On local issues, Business Administrator Jim Bradley said that when the board agreed to this year's five percent pay raise for teachers, the cost of living was increasing by more than six percent. Now inflation hovers around two percent. The teachers were asked to reduce the increase, but the powerful Ontario Teachers' Federation vetoed the idea.

"The collective agreement expires next September," Bradley says. "That drives the whole budget, really, and keeping it to inflation will help solve our problems."

"People in this area are very poorly paid and our teachers, most that are here, want to live in

'Teachers have to realize their salaries have a major impact on residents. Today, people are lucky if they have a job.'

DANIEL ZAKAIB

this community and will be willing to get a little less," said Dysart Deputy-reeve Curry Bishop.

"I believe it's a necessity that our students get equal education and in order to do that, we have to draw the competent teachers," said Bradley.

"Salaries are where we have to concentrate," said resident Daniel Zakaib, whose taxes have gone up four times their original value in 10 years, and two-thirds of that money goes to the board. "Teachers have to realize their salaries have a major impact on residents. Today people are lucky if they have a job."

Teachers are some of the only employees in Haliburton with safe, secure jobs, said farmer and self-employed businessman Godfrey Tyler. "I've probably suffered a five percent decrease (in income) and I don't have a steady job. Nowadays teachers practically have to kill someone before they can get fired. Yet what goes up? My taxes."

"So does the price of maple syrup," said Trustee Wayne Wood, in reference to Tyler's syrup business. Tyler's retort was short and to the point. "My prices have not gone up in three years... What drives this economy is the guy on the bottom end — reality is going to be colliding (with salaries) at some point in time."

Bradley said "teacher groups are very much aware these are tough times." Teachers in Newcastle recently agreed to a pay freeze, other groups are starting negotiations at two to three percent. "That's a long way from eight and nine percent opening gambits."

"The board of education does not just exist to keep taxes down," said Brad Saunders. "We have to guarantee the quality of education that parents and grandparents have come to expect."

Trustee Len Salvatori also noted that some boards hire salary negotiators for $50-100,000. Because of good relations between the board and the teachers, which Salvatori wants to keep, such costs have been avoided locally.

Hodgson asked how the local board's cost per student compared to other jurisdictions. The average, Bradley replied, is $5,600 for elementary students and $6,300 for secondary students and the board is within $100 of those figures. The province will pay up to $4,000 and then the cost is borne 100 percent by local taxpayers.

"Maybe you'll have to do something that's illegal, and on the municipal level we'll have to do that do," said Bishop. Many programs are being instigated by the province, which then does not provide the accompanying funding. The board might have to say no to some of the programs, such as junior kindergarten.

"Is our MPP (Dennis Drainville) listening to the community and voting against junior kindergarten," asked Tyler. Salvatori said "it depends on the number of letters you write."

Saunders also noted that the Ministry is able to boast it is cutting its administration costs because it is foisting some of the services onto local boards. "The Ministry is looking good but it's at the expense of the local boards."

Reserve water released from lakes

The dry weather this week (ending June 20) finally resulted in a release of some reserve water from the Haliburton Lakes of the Trent-Severn Waterway. The stored water began the week at 93.8 percent of maximum on Monday, June 15. This was about 1.5 percent higher than the 10-year average.

The Kawartha Lakes portion of the canal route generally declined gradually this week, despite reductions to the outflow to near minimum. High winds and dry conditions caused greater losses late in the week.

County wants MNR to do its job

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

The mandate of the Ministry of Natural Resources is to provide for the health and wellbeing of our forests, and the majority of county councillors feel the county has no need to usurp that role.

"Forests are our lifeblood," said Dysart et al Reeve Chris Hodgson at Wednesday's county council meeting. "The MNR's mandate is the forest, and if we take it on, we're letting them slip from their mandate."

"I think we should tell the MNR (to look after the forests) and then we'll look after what we're supposed to look after."

Cardiff Deputy-reeve Dan Rivett agreed. "We should send a strong letter (to the province) telling them that the ministry's mandate is natural resources and they are responsible for it. We don't have the people to do the job. We have to tell them, 'that's your ball park, you stay in it.'"

They were responding to Lutterworth's proposal to take advantage of provincial funding to hire a forest health co-ordinator for a year. The province would pay the salary.

Last year, 56,163 hectares of land in Haliburton County were defoliated by the gypsy moth. The forest health co-ordinator would continue on with the work of the present gypsy moth co-ordinator — whose job is being discontinued this month because the province has pulled out of the spray program it initiated.

Lutterworth's reeve and deputy-reeve say someone is needed to contact and work with landowners to co-ordinate the spray program. Now that provincial funding for spraying is no longer available, landowners are expected to pick up all the costs for spraying. When the MNR pulled out, the fee jumped from $6 an acre to $60 for up to three acres, followed by a sliding fee scale.

"People are willing to spend $60 and there's definitely a problem," said Deputy-reeve Jim McMahon, who is also the county's gypsy moth representative. "They want to save our trees."

"If the funding is there (for a co-ordinator), take it, use it, as long as it's not costing the taxpayers. Why can't we be the leaders here?"

But isn't the MNR already working to save the trees, asked Hodgson. And doesn't the MNR have more resources and more trained staff at the Highway 35 office to do it?

If the MNR won't spray crown land, then how can you keep the moths curtailed on private land, asked Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Bern Berry. He sees the spray program as another example of the province initiating programs and then pulling out, leaving the funding to lower governments.

"To do nothing is the wrong thing to do," said Lutterworth Reeve Cam Ecclestone, who introduced the motion to hire the co-ordinator. Andy Paul, the present co-ordinator, "did an excellent job of contacting people who were between properties being sprayed" and getting them to sign on.

The hardest hit area is Lutterworth, although concentrations of egg masses are found throughout the county. However, Bicroft Reeve Hans Stephens said the co-ordinator's efforts would primarily be focused on Lutterworth. Then people in other municipalities would say "How come you don't do it here?"

Are there not people who do this for a living," asked Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman, agreeing that landowners can hire private sprayers without a co-ordinator.

If the ministry has the money to pay the $16,000 salary (for six months) for the co-ordinator, why can't it spend the money on its own staff to do the job, asked Glamorgan Reeve Bev MacDuff. If the county takes on the job and then has to shoulder the costs, people will blame the county for pulling out of the program.

Sherborne et al Reeve Ross Rabjohn suggested having someone from the MNR address council on what the ministry is doing to curtail the moth's activities and protect the forests. "We need to have people in to answer our questions if we're really going to make a proper judgement."

After the vote, Warden George Simmons said that he was afraid "the ministry is giving every county the funding to put things in place because down the line we'll be responsible... They haven't the money."

"Maybe that's what they want to do but governments change," said Glamorgan Deputy-reeve Glen Madill.

In the final vote, only Ecclestone, McMahon, Rabjohn and Simmons were in favour of hiring the co-ordinator. MacDuff paused when she was asked to vote. "I can't make a decision," she said. "That's what you're paid for," said Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Bern Berry. MacDuff decided not to abstain and voted against the proposal.

Former resident dies

A former Haliburton resident passed away at the Ajax-Pickering Hospital on Sunday, May 24, 1992.

Tom Sanderson lived in Haliburton from 1914 to 1944, and at the time of his death, had a cottage in the village on Riverside Street.

Mr. Sanderson was married to the late Jeane (Parish) and is the loving father of Alistair and his wife Betty, and Joan and her husband Bill Lucas. He also leaves behind his grandchildren, Tom, Kristina, Terri, Susie and Stephen, and his great-grandchildren, Shane and Lindsay.

Funeral arrangements were made by McEachnie Funeral Home in Ajax; cremation followed. Donations were made to the Ajax-Pickering Hospital Building Fund.

Smokey the Bear crashes a local teddy bear picnic

by LAURA CAMPBELL
Special to the Echo

"If you go into the woods today, you're in for a big surprise... it's the day the teddy-bears have their picnic."

And what a surprise it was when none other than Smokey the Bear showed up.

Grade 1 classes from Victoria St. school were joined by their penpals, the Grade 1 classes from Minden's Archie Stouffer, Elementary School, in Rotary Park for a year-end picnic.

"For the last three weeks we've been studying real and famous fictional bears and decided to culminate the whole thing with a teddy-bear picnic," said Victoria Street teacher Toos Reid.

The children shrieked with delight when their special guest Smokey arrived. He was accompanied by J.D. Bishop, the Fire Prevention Officer, as well as a three-man fire crew all from the Haliburton base of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

Since summer vacation was just around the corner, Bishop talked about the three most common ways to prevent forest fires. These include telling parents to make sure cigarette butts and campfires are properly extinguished and that children shouldn't play with matches.

After this lesson each student was given a turn at the various fire hoses in an attempt to extinguish an imaginary fire.

Unfortunately Smokey had to leave early due to problems farther north, but his visit will long be remembered by the children. As Haley Emmerson a student in Mrs. Reid's class, notes, "He's a good bear that tells kids to prevent forest fires so the animals don't die."

Resident fights road closing

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Dave Clarry brought a petition to Monmouth council two Mondays ago. There are 119 people who say they agree with his request to re-open an abandoned roadway.

When the county took over and improved the Essonville Line from Highway 121 to Wilberforce, it by-passed a small stretch — perhaps 200 to 300 metres — of the old road. This stretch of road runs past the Trent Severn Waterways dam and reverted back to township ownership.

In October, council placed two piles of sand on the road, blocking through traffic. However, from the east side, people can still drive in half of the way.

Council had two reasons for doing so: the road is not maintained, nor will it be, and if there's an accident, council could be liable for damages; as well, the road was often used as a party area, disturbing the neighbouring cottagers, who wanted the road closed.

Clarry says police told him there were few complaints about parties. He also notes that contrary to the Municipal Act, there was no public notice, apart from the public council meeting minutes, that the road would be closed.

"How can we oppose anything if the decisions are made behind closed doors," Clarry says. "I'm definitely going to see this through."

He's meeting with the county roads engineer. Without the road to park on, Clarry says problems will arise when people park their cars and boat trailers at the bottom of Vinegar Hill.

Reform Party reflects country's grass roots

MORE LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

meet at midnight with secret handshakes at the full of the moon!! Believe it or not, we are merely ordinary, average Canadians who have become concerned about the future of our country, one example being the debt that you young people will have to continue paying, as well as your children.

We admit that some of us are white, middle aged, greying hair, and even some are male. But we refuse to admit that any of these is a crime, perhaps these people have lived long enough to have developed a deep love for their country, to have hope for a better one, and one that remains united.

You also mention the lack of young people, and minorities in the membership. I would be interested in knowing your source. All membership lists are confidential, and certainly not accessible to the press.

You are correct in assuming that my children attended school with others of different races and backgrounds, but I can never remember being aware of the colour of their skin, or whether they had been born in Canada or elsewhere. Education was the only thing on our minds. The word "racism" is being used today in the same context that "communism" was used in the '60s, and is proving equally foolish and divisive. Here in our village of Minden, we have a number of people that could be termed as new Canadians, and of whom we can be justly proud. These people of different race and background chose our Community in which to settle, work and raise their family. We welcome them and wish them the very best.

The media, at one time, reported the news in an impartial, unbiased fashion. The power of the press is immense, and this is only right and proper in a free democratic society. We wouldn't want it any other way. But the press should never negate the responsibility it holds to report in a responsible way as well. I realize that the editorial is a column where the editor can hold forth and express his/her views. This, too, is part of a free press. But it is not the prerogative of the editor to slant his/her views with inaccuracies either by suggestion or innuendos.

I extend to you, as well as any member of the press, or any interested member of the community to attend any of our meetings. You are not required to become a member. Just come with an open mind. Ours is truly a grass roots party, and we will welcome all criticisms and suggestions.

Ada I. Campbell,
Minden.

Editorial was fair

To the Editor:

Just a short letter to congratulate you on the fair, balanced, editorial on the Reform Party. Based, as it was, on factual grounds, you made an old democratic socialist like myself feel proud of your return to a more statistical evaluation of what is often misrepresented by emotional blindness.

Keep up the good work. Today, as never before, we need editors who refuse to be swept up by the lure of simplistic political programs that conveniently ignore established facts. I couldn't have said it better myself. Again, thank you.

H. Michael Collins,
Gooderham.

Pay-per-view could be next on county agenda

To the Editor:

Re: Jeanne Anthon's reference in the June 16th "County Life" to a California tax to beach front homeowners for their view.

Shame on Jeanne! Doesn't she know how fast our county government latches on to ideas like this? They found out someone got away with an annual fee for roadside signs and they stuck it to everybody who had one.

How long before our cottagers will be paying through the nose for their view of the lake?

Harvey M. Clarke,
Donald.

To the Editor:

There is a very disturbing "happening" on the little lake where we have had our cottage since 1957.

For the month of July, those in control have allowed instructors and pupils on our lovely lake for water-skiing.

We have been told, if they, (the skier) attempt to put up ski ramps or slalom buoys they will have to go elsewhere. This is all very well but — here comes the Big BUT — the people involved have their advertisement as far south as Toronto!!!

At the same time jet skis come speeding down the lake towards the dam and back again. There are many people swimming (mostly children) in their path and one day there will be a terrible accident.

Both the jet-skis and the ski boats make an awful noise. People come to cottages to get away from all of that so why should they be subjected to more noise? To even sit quietly and fish is a problem. The wake from these boats is very strong.

Why doesn't someone open up one of the uninhabited lakes just for the noise makers?

We also have many racing boats come in from the big lake to test their high-powered motors for the regatta that is held annually. These types of boats are for the big lakes (like Lake Ontario etc.) Why should they be allowed to do this? They add to the noise and probably feel it is a macho thing to do.

All of this horse power is too much for a tiny lake where we have nesting loons, beavers, mink and muskrats.

There are three people on our lake who have their own boats and some do water-skiing. We feel this is plenty of traffic and activity we do not need more.

Joan Hegarty,
Mount Albert.

Jumping fish puts an end to the kiss of the spider woman for the first time that season, Martin walked down to the shore. His feet would have to toughen up again. The rocks felt rough, even the gravel biting into his tender, city soles.

After the initial shock of the cold water, Martin relaxed, letting the lake cool his body as he bobbed on his back like a cork. A warm breeze was even keeping the mosquitoes at bay so all in all, Martin felt good about life, then he saw it. It was the largest dock spider Martin had ever seen. And it was not on the dock. It was on the rocks at the shore, within spitting distance of his towel.

In order for Martin to be able to see it so clearly from such a distance, he knew this monster had to be enormous. Faced with the possibility of this creature inhabiting his shore, intimidating him every time he wanted to go for a swim, Martin was forced to deal with the situation. He swam along the shore, well out of the way of the spider and withdrew from the water, trying not to stumble on the rocks. Circling back to the dock, Martin reluctantly walked across it to the boat and pulled out a paddle. He glanced over at the rocks. The spider was still there, sunning itself.

Sneaking up behind it, Martin lashed out with the paddle. Convinced he had hit his target, he moved the paddle aside only to find nothing, no indication that the spider had been there. Cursing under his breath, Martin guessed it had seen him coming and scurried between the rocks at the last minute. Martin withdrew a short distance, waiting and watching in the hope the insect would reappear. The thought of it lurking out of sight every time he went for a swim filled Martin with dread.

After five minutes a long black leg tentatively appeared on a large boulder, followed by the rest of the spider. Once it was fully in sight, Martin slowly moved within range then lashed out again with the paddle. The spider must have had an inner sense of danger because it foiled Martin's attempt for the second time. Martin was incredulous and at the same time frustrated. He withdrew in a different direction and settled down to wait.

Eventually, when Martin was about to give up, the spider reappeared. This time it was on a grey, flat rock perched mere inches from the water. Martin shuddered to think he might have to share his lake with such a creature.

He was so preoccupied with his terrible forbodings that Martin almost missed what happened next, for it only took a flash of time. As the spider stood on the flat rock, almost mocking Martin in its huge and cunning ugliness, a fish jumped out of the water and snapped the spider up like a delicious, oversized beetle. It was gone.

Martin shook his head and blinked several times, not sure he had seen what he knew he had seen. At that moment he decided that he would never again fish in front of his cottage. The fish were much more useful in the lake than in his frying pan.

Natural beauty blooms

The only thing I want to yank out is the nightshade.

Last year, we gave some of the older hens a larger pen area to run in. Within a week, the quack grass was gone, roots and all. I haven't let the hens loose there this year, because we need higher fence to keep them out of the garden. Now, that whole area is full of wildflowers or weeds (depending on your point of view.) Some of that wild growth is gooseberries.

I suppose some folks driving by look with disdain at the freedom of growth in our yard. They would love to spray it down with chemicals, and plant it with a smooth, unblemished, boring carpet of socially correct, monochromatic green. They would allow certain manually formed glower gardens to appear in geometrically perfect, stylistic patterns. Of course, these would only contain certain popular hybrid species of flowers or shrubs. The shrubs, sculpted by shears in shapes deemed to be artistically cute. Maybe bird or butterfly shapes, since the real thing would no longer come around due to the abundance of chemicals and the lack of real nectar or worms.

No thank you. I'll keep my wildflowers. Mainly because I had nothing to do with them. They were a gift from the original planter of seeds, the giver of all life.

Danielle LaRue

A time to celebrate

By DANIELLE LARUE
OAC Valedictorian

After talking with many of my fellow students, I have tried to capture, in a word, the dominant feeling that I'm sure will be felt in all of our hearts tonight.

That word is celebration.

For five years, we have attended HHSS together. We have shared many memorable experiences, both good and bad, but most importantly, we have met the challenge of our OAC year.

Many people fail to realize the hard work and sacrifice involved in reaching this goal. Today, with the recession and uncertainties in the job market, many people are returning to post-secondary institutions, making student acceptance into university of college a highly competitive task.

But the difficulty of this challenge only serves to make our success all the more gratifying. We can now celebrate the sense of pride and accomplishment we feel in receiving our high school diplomas tonight.

We must also celebrate the people who were essential in making this achievement a reality. HHSS is full of dedicated teachers who have taken the time to help and encourage us along the way.

Mrs. Louise Cooper tried emphatically to impress upon us finite concepts such as permutations and combinations. Our class would hold its breath as Fraenzi Greber would duck out of the way of Mrs. Cooper's flailing arms. Needless to say, her method was quite effective.

There are, however, many different teaching methods and each is effective in its own way. Mr. Frank Wallace, for instance, would never lead us in certain directions toward a solution. He forced us to and succeeded in making us think for ourselves. There are also teachers like Mr. Walter Tose, who has, through his patience and understanding of young people, become very highly regarded among his OAC students.

Another admirable teacher who is graduating, or shall I say escaping, along with us this year is Mr. Sid Cooper. Mr. Cooper, we know you have been looking forward to your retirement for a long time and we would like to thank you for being such a valuable asset to our school. The OAC physics class would also like to express their thanks for that knowledgeable seminar held at Canada's Wonderland earlier this spring.

Now, let us celebrate our parents—those won-

NO SINGLE VOICE is adequate for this task. So I will draw my strength from the group for which I speak — my fellow graduates.

Make no mistake about it, we are graduating into a world of confusion and instability. The nightly news is a constant reminder of race riots, family violence, rising unemployment and environmental catastrophes. The list goes on and on.

Are we ready to take on these problems? Only time will tell. But I believe we are willing, and increasingly able, to stare down these difficulties and offer some creative solutions. Considering what we have gone through to get this far only strengthens this belief.

...(In elementary school) the teachers were generally understanding and supportive — except for this big mean teacher who yelled at me for being so quiet. This has been a problem which I have found more difficult to overcome, but I'm working on it.

Grade 9 and high school amplified our problems beyond belief. How small we felt, glancing up into the faces of the senior students, being careful not to bump into them in the halls and learning not to walk by the "T" where all the studs hung out at lunch time.

In Grade 9 we couldn't imagine graduation; but here we are today in our slick polyester graduation gowns, ready to grab our diplomas and run, yet also aware that we are gathered for one of the last times before our parents, relatives, friends, teachers and cameramen.

We can't let this opportunity slip by without thanking those who supported us along the way.

First, our teachers have overseen the nuts and bolts of learning. We have dotted all the "i's" and crossed all the "t's" (or most of them at any rate.) But, more than that, they have helped us shape our career aspirations, given untold hours of their spare time to coach us in drama, music and athletics — just for the love of these pursuits — and generally made us more aware of the importance of working to become better at something, which is what education is all about.

Second, we owe one another a vote of thanks. Not only have we provided encouragement and understanding, but we have also challenged one another in the spirit of fair competition.

Finally, we thank our parents. Although she may not realize it, my mother, as a single parent, has contributed more to my education than anyone else. Even though she wasn't the type of person who would pat me on the back when I did well, or help me out with my homework, I always knew she expected me to do my best.

Graduation is not the end

 And there were times that this was the most important thing for me to know. Thanks, Mom!
 And now to commencement. Yes, to beginnings. This is NOT the end, my beautiful friends. We are about to embark on life's next voyage, whatever shape it might take. Some of us are headed off to college where we'll have our noses buried in books every night of the week; still others will test the uneasy waters of employment.
 I recently read a short article about a Mexico City company which manufactures oxygen booths for parks and malls. Just breathing in that city is equivalent to smoking two packs of cigarettes a day!
 This is just one of a million problems we can put our brains to work to solve for a cleaner, safer future.
 Are we ready to face these challenges? I believe we are.

Certificates of Education were presented to Patricia Reid and Charlene Davis.

To the clicking of cameras, the 1992 graduating class of J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School accepted their diplomas from Principal Doug Devolin. Below, Josh Brown takes his turn in the limelight

Staying in school is cool

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

ON THEIR LAST DAY at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, the Grade 8 graduates were given a very clear message: stay in school.

Not that the guest speaker didn't want them to enjoy the summer vacation. But Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Principal Peter Forgrave warned of the temptations which lie ahead over the next four or five years.

"It's your last day of being the biggest fish in the pond but next year, don't worry, we'll take care of you," he told the fancily-dressed graduates who were trying to look old beyond their years. "The sharks in the new pond don't have sharp teeth, some don't even bite. The main thing is learning how to swim and staying in school. Some kids will try to talk you out of going to school. Are you going to fall for their bait?"

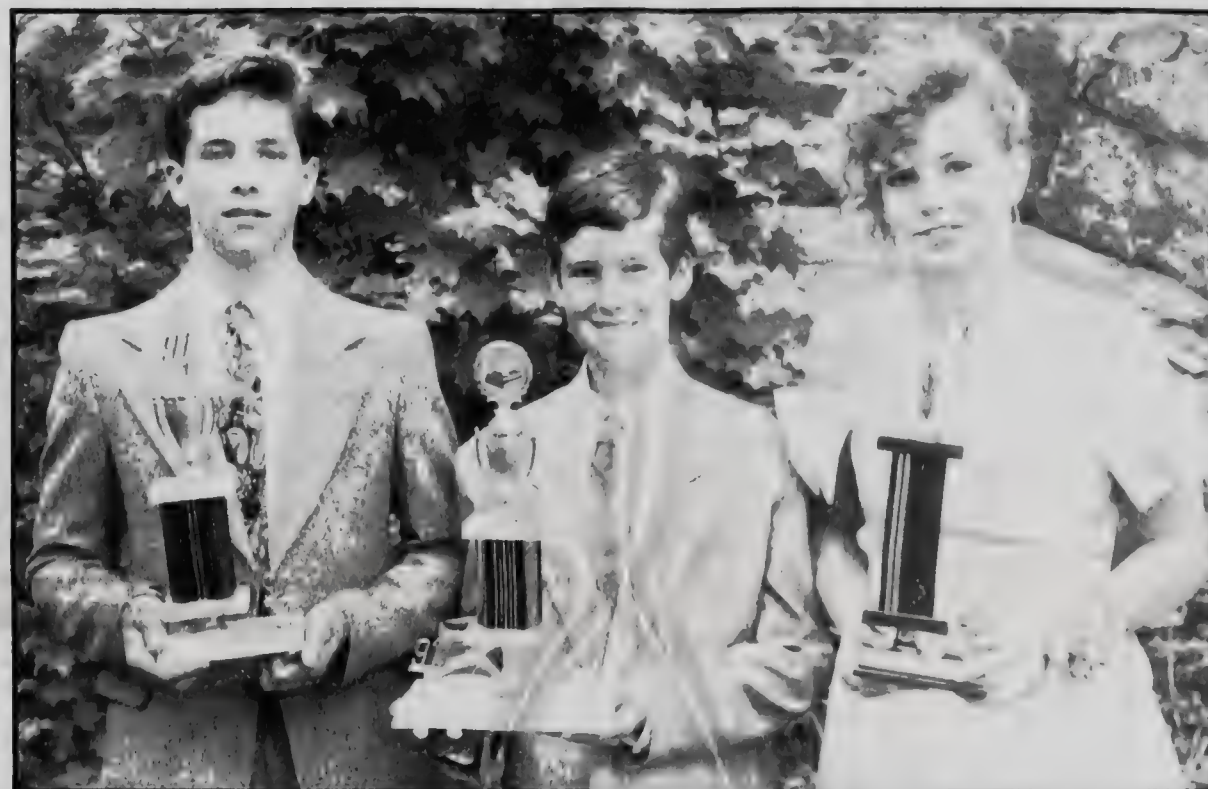

Especially in today's job market, a high school diploma is imperative. Besides, where else but in school will you get to see your friends. "We find one of the major problems with drop outs is they drop out but they don't leave — they hang around to see their friends," Mr. Forgrave said.

School also gives young people an opportunity to be recognized for their talents. "Every day in every classroom, every student has the chance to do something well and be recognized for it..."

"We do ask you to work hard though, and sometimes it's difficult to get everything done. But you should never think young people are the only ones who sometimes wish they could just leave everything behind them."

The high school principal told the story of a teenager who got into a fight with his parents and stomped out of the house, vowing never to return. His father followed him. "You can't make me change my mind," the son fumed. "I'm not trying to," responded the father; "I'm coming with you."

And it was to the parents that Mr. Forgrave

Singled out for their contributions to all aspects of school life are Tim Hughes, Todd Hoare and Teressa Scheffee.

reminded them that education is a partnership between the student, school and parents. School has much changed since many parents attended, and he welcomed them to find out about those changes. For instance, in 1993, semestering will begin, resulting in a new scheduling system. In 1993, "streaming" will be discontinued in Grade 9, and students will have an extra year to decide at which level they wish to study. These Grade 8 graduates will be the last to enter Grade 9 under the old system.

Yet despite the serious message of his speech, Mr. Forgrave said Friday afternoon was the time to offer a hearty congratulations to the students. "If you're anything like the past Grade 8s, you'll add only good things to our school."

Many of the students had already contributed good things to JHES. There were students, all of them from 8C, who managed to get to school every day this year. There were others who achieved honours, or got involved in school activities. Librarian Leona Carter said "please accept (the forthcoming applause) if you know you did your very best this year... The world desperately needs your steady effort."

Awards were then presented to students who displayed enthusiasm and aptitude in the individual subjects. They are as followed, with the winner from 8A followed by the winners in 8B and 8C: Art: Niki Fluegel, Rob Andrus, Debbie Nash; English: Bronwen Winsley, Teressa Scheffee, Todd Hoare; Family Studies: Niki Fluegel, Lauren Wilson, Tammy Packard; French: Loreena Rogers, Jon Hebert, Tim Hughes; Geography: Connie Houghton, Nancy Douglas, Tim Hughes; History: Kari Baker, Jon Hebert, Todd Hoare; Industrial Arts: Sharon Lancia, Josh Brown, Todd Hoare; Math: Sharon Lancia, Lauren Wilson, Jessica Martino; Music: Jacob Cowling, Jeremy Scheffee, Nathan MacDuff; Physical Education and Health: Niki Fluegel, Teressa Scheffee, Debbie Nash; and Science: Kari Baker, Trish Vaughan, Tim Hughes.

The tension built as the three individual awards were presented.

To win the Special Distinction Award, Vice-principal David McKinley said a student must achieve honours, be polite and respectful to students and teachers, be involved in a number of school activities, demonstrate leadership ability and have good attendance. The recipient, Tim Hughes of Wilberforce, played in the band, helped a junior student who had speech difficulties, videotaped activities and "thinks of other people before himself. He's pleasant a joyful, a polite gentleman."

A new award for citizenship was created for the graduating student who is congenial, polite, helpful and gets a capital E for Effort. "An outstanding student," said teacher Roy Hoare. The teachers looked for a name for the award and felt that Principal Doug Devolin exemplified these characteristics. So Teressa Scheffee was the first recipient of the Douglas H. Devolin Award for Citizenship.

Teacher Sharon Harrison, who is transferring to Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden, presented the Top Grade 8 Student Award. "First I'd like to congratulate each of ICAN REMEMBER, six years ago on this day, when I and a couple of my friends were sitting in the bleachers, staring with envy at the people sitting in these chairs.

They were so old in our eyes. Each one of us was thinking that it would take us forever to graduate, and to be able to sit in those chairs!

Here I am!

...This is a very happy day for some, sad for others, and also very exciting too. Each of us, fellow graduates, as of September, will be encountering different teachers, different classrooms and different friends.

No longer will it be the cozy 63 of us, always together, playing jokes on one another, and having fun, each of us being the best of friends. We will meet new people in high school, and perhaps grow apart from each other, each taking our separate paths.

We won't have the opportunity to walk into the front doors of this school, and meet the teachers' friendly, caring smiles on the first day of school. There are so many wonderful things about this school, which anyone would hate to leave.

I'd like to talk about Mr. Lee Clark for a moment. Now Mr. Clark believes in being directly on time, 8:50 every morning or... detention! If you ever walked into his classroom around 11, you would be sure to see Loreena Rogers' and Bronwen Winsley's names on Mr. Clark's detention list. Those two girls, let me tell you, are not known for their punctuality.

...Always wearing a smile and always having something to say, Mr. Clark is known as a first-class story teller and first-class arguer. Watching Mr. Clark and Josh Brown argue is like watching university debating teams... All of this goes on during computer class, and sensing that if they enter the argument they won't have to do any work, Jackie Morrison and Chad Bowers joined in. Everyone looked forward to a fight in computer class.

History and geography, on the other hand, are very serious. Proper materials every day or five marks would be deducted. Well, I hope this doesn't offend you, Mr. (Roy) Scott, but deep down I think you're just a big softie!!

Always giving fair marks to everyone, always understanding, and always counted on to organize school sports events, and to make them fun, Mr. Scott is a favourite.

This year's industrial arts teacher was Mr. (Paul) Way. Now we all know Mr. Way and I'm sure we all love his 10-minute, no punchline jokes.

Since I am leaving this school, I will make a big confession to Mr. Way: I never understood a lot of your jokes, but I laughed at them anyway, or I scowled. Put it this way — I just did what everyone else did.

Mrs. (Elizabeth) Turner, this year's science teacher, is one of the most patient people I have ever known. She could handle the class clowns with no trouble at all. She made science experiments fun, and she tried to help you understand why certain things happen. Science is not an easy subject and for some, it is boring. But Mrs. Turner changes that for everyone.

I'll classify the Grade 8 French teacher, Mme Lorry Perry, and the music teacher, Mr. (Ed) Whiteway under the same category: full of smiles, and rarely would you hear a mean comment from either of one them. If you have had problems, they took the time to help you out.

Right bisectors, constructing perpendiculars, multiplying integers... sound familiar, fellow graduates? Well, Mrs. (Diane) Dron taught me that lovely subject — math! I had trouble with geometry towards the end of the year but Mrs. Dron brought me out of my depression with her usual "Come on Teressa, you can do it!"

Mrs. Dron was my homeroom teacher, and if you ever needed advice on anything, you would be sure to visit her. She taught everyone about the real world, and the unexpected fates which could await us. She is very organized...

Now that brings me to another very special but disorganized teacher, Mrs. (Pat) Bain. She too you," she said, entreating them to be good citizens of the world and faithful stewards of the environment. "You have displayed that you are each very unique, and we need each one of you to go into this world and show other countries that we can hold hands and solve our differences. I wish you all courage and strength to keep your integrity."

In presenting the award to Todd Hoare, Ms. Harrison said he demonstrated academic ability, effort, interest and co-operation. "He's dedicated, enthusiastic, responsible and very, very conscientious. He gave 100 percent effort."

As the ceremony drew to a close and people prepared to gather for refreshments inside and the time-honoured photographs outside, Mr.

Devolin reminded his audience that "when three groups of people (— students, teachers and parents —) get together, you get a very strong team. Don't opt out."

The following are the 1992 Grade 8 graduates of J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, with honours students (80 percent or higher average) in capital letters: Robert Andrus, James Bacon KARI BAKER, Brad Barrick, Andrea Black, Paul Bonello, Chad Bowers, Melanie Bradley, Michael Bradley, Joshua Brown, Mike Burton, Christine Carpenter, Jacob Cowling, Brad Crane, WESLY DEJONG, Scott Delorme, NANCY DOUGLAS, Michelle Dovell, Jason Draper, Angela Duhn, Joel Edwards, NIKI FLUEGEL, Matthew Galbraith, Brock Glendinning, Jennifer Glover, Brian Haley, Mandy Harrison, JON HEBERT, Kim Henry, Lisa Henry, TODD HOARE, CONNIE HOUGHTON, Krissy Houghton, Sean Howden, Mark Hughes, TIM HUGHES, Daniel Jackman, Blake Jackson, Tim Keefer, Jeff Klapow, SHARON LANCIA, April Lymburner, Michael Lyons, Nathan MacDuff, kai Makowski, JESSICA MARTINO, Tania Mastervick, Jackie Morrison, DEBBIE NASH, Tammy Packard, Curtis Reynolds, LOREENA ROGERS, Curtis Sawyer, Jeremy Scheffee, TERESSA SCHEFFEE, Jill Scott, Lucas Thompson, Jeremy Traviss, TRISH VAUGHAN, LAUREN WILSON, BRONWEN WINSLEY, Kyle Woodman and Boyd Woods.

For the third time in four years, J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School has won the television brainteaser Campus Quiz. Under the direction of Roy Hoare, the team has spent the past year practising and competing at a Peterborough TV station. The finals will be broadcast June 27 at 12:30 p.m. on CHEX. Graeme Fawcett (back row, left) was the standby while Todd Hoare, Nicholas Fawcett (front) and Rachel Levis beat teams from 55 other schools. Todd was invited to be on the Invitational All-Star Team and lost the first-place spot in a tie-breaker. That match will be aired on July 4 at 12:30 p.m. on CHEX.

was constantly smiling and looking happy every minute. You could tell she loved where she was, even after seeing her put Mike Bradley in a headlock, or watching her argue with people about her height, trying to convince them that she really was taller, but you just had trouble with your eyes.

There is one other teacher who has become especially important to me. I have been on Student Council for three years and have grown to think of him as a best friend — the school's gym teacher, the Campus Quiz coach, and the leader of the Student Council, Mr. (Roy) Hoare....

I would like to thank all of our teachers, since none of us would be here today if it weren't for you. I consider myself very lucky to have a great set of teachers. I have lived in Haliburton all my life so I haven't been to many other schools. Regardless of that, I can honestly say that this school is one of the best!

When you are with the same people and in the same surroundings for six years, you grow to be a part of the people and the place. It is now time to move on, and some will be going willingly; others it will be just the opposite.

Different routes are yet to be explored, and as each of us can see, change is setting in. What if I take the wrong path? How can I change my decision?

Chances are, fellow graduates, that we may choose the wrong path. But keep going until you reach a turn.

We will think back to this day, and of the teachers who helped us get here, and of our families for putting up with us through all of these years.

Next year, while we're writing a two-hour, 11-page exam, we will think of how great it was being here.

Thank you to all of you teachers, and thank you to Mr. (Doug) Devolin and Mr. (David) McKinley, for helping us get to where we are today. I would also like to say good luck to my fellow graduates. I have confidence in each of you that you will do well in your future studies.

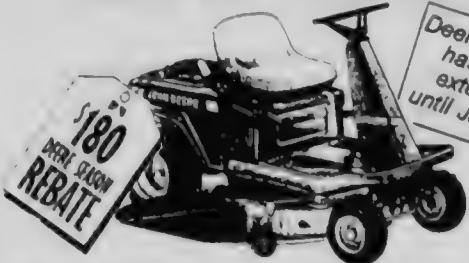

We also should be congratulating ourselves, for we are the Grade 8 graduates of 1992. WE HAVE DONE IT!!!!!!

PEOPLE

Live each day to fullest: LaRue

derful people who have loved and supported us unconditionally all of our lives. Our parents have tolerated our mood swings, put up with our wild ideas, but most importantly, they have encouraged us and pushed us to be our very best. When things went wrong, we could always depend on them to keep our lives in perspective. Like most of my classmates, at one time or another this year, I wanted to quit school and run away to Europe. I remember telling my Dad about it during January exams. First, he calmly pointed out what a waste of time all my hard work would have been, but then he also quickly noted that if that didn't bring me to my senses, a good, swift kick in the butt might. Thank you Dad, I needed that kind of encouragement to get me back on track. Our parents are the people who have influenced us to be what we are today. I hope all of them are proud.

At this time, I feel it is appropriate to reflect on a person who should have been graduating and celebrating along with us tonight. We will all miss Sandy Bannon, who was taken suddenly from us earlier this year. We have learned the hard way that life is unpredictable. My message to my fellow students is to live each and every day to the fullest. Work as hard as you can to achieve your own destinies, fate can intervene. We must find time to appreciate all the things that we can so easily take for granted. Often, as we are anxious to embark on our future career goals, we fail to realize just how fortunate we are to have grown up in the Haliburton Highlands and to have been a member of H.H.S.S.

Through correspondence with Dustin Davis, one of our classmates who is visiting Spain this year on a student exchange, I have been exposed to a different perspective of our community and school.

"School is very boring in Europe," he writes. "No sports clubs, only academics. The teachers are anything but inspiring! Couldn't hold a candle to Morissette. I've learned a lot during my year here, a lot about myself. Another thing I've learned is just how beautiful are the Haliburton Highlands and that H.H.S.S. is a great school."

The extra-curricular activities offered here are a very important part of the character of H.H.S.S. Without activities such as competitive sports teams, much of the talent of various students would never have been uncovered. Who would have imagined that a Grade 9 student named Bart Given, after being blown away in the 400m, would emerge in his senior years to become the fastest sprinter in the history of this school? As well as uncovering talent, extra-curricular activities teach us responsibility, self-discipline and good sportsmanship. They are also responsible for the forming of friendships that may not have occurred under purely academic conditions. I, personally, will always feel a special closeness to my relay teammate of four years, Arlene Simmons.

But whether it's friends in sports or friends in concert band or friends in organizations such as the SAC, at H.H.S.S., friends are everywhere—even on the tile bed dancing in front of the entire school to the tune of Michael Jackson! Right Tracey!

A small school in a close-knit community enables us to form these kinds of friendships and the memories of them will sustain us as we seek our place in new social settings next fall.

We have learned much in our five years in high school, but one of the most valuable things we have learned is self-discipline. This past year, our teachers stepped back in order to teach us that we are the only ones responsible for finishing our assigned tasks. If we wanted good marks, we had to work for them. With this self-discipline, I know that we can overcome almost any challenge, academic or otherwise, that we will meet in the future.

BLAIR GRADUATION: Terry and Sharon Blair of Haliburton are proud to announce the graduation of their daughter Kim Blair from Durham College of Applied Arts and Technology in Oshawa. Kim successfully completed the two year Executive Office Administration Program in one year. Kim is currently employed at Ontario Hydro in Minden.

WAY GRADUATION: Andrew Way graduated on May 2 from Sir Sandford Fleming College, Frost Campus, with a diploma as a Heavy Equipment Technician. Happy parents are Paul and Ruby Way. Andrew is presently seeking employment.

POPPLER GRADUATION: Jeffery Ronald Popple, son of Don and Sheila Popple of Haliburton, received the degree of Bachelor of Commerce (Hons) at Convocation at McMaster University, Hamilton, on June 5, 1992. He is presently employed at General Motors Acceptance Corporation, Oshawa.

MOORE GRADUATION: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Harrison are proud to announce that their daughter Michele recently graduated from Brock University with a Bachelor of Education and a Bachelor of Recreation and Leisure Studies. Michele is the wife of Gregory Moore of Carnarvon and is presently employed by the Niagara Parks Commission in Niagara Falls.

DUNSMORE GRADUATION: Andrew Dunsmore, grandson of the late Mary and Elwin Robertson, graduated with honours from the University of Guelph with a Bachelor of Science degree in Biology. Andrew, a commercial pilot, is continuing his flight training at St. Hubert, Quebec.

PUBLIC NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF THE MUNICIPAL ACT AND IN THE MATTER OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SNOWDON TO STOP UP, CLOSE AND CONVEY THAT PORTION OF THE ORIGINAL SHORE ROAD ALLOWANCE ALONG THE SHORE OF CANNING LAKE, IN FRONT OF LOT 11, CONCESSION 14, IN THE TOWNSHIP OF SNOWDON.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: pursuant to Chapter 302, Section 298 and 301 of The Municipal Act, R.S.O. 1980, as amended that the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Snowdon proposes to consider and if deemed advisable, to pass at its regular meeting to be held at the Gelert Community Hall, Gelert, Ontario, On Monday, July 13th, 1992, at 7:30 pm, a by-law to Stop Up, Close and Convey those parcels of land more particularly described as follows

WHICH SAID plan of survey may be examined at the Municipal Office of the Township of Snowdon in Gelert, Ontario

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that before passing the said by-law at its meeting to be held at the time and place above mentioned, the Council of the Township of Snowdon shall then and there hear in person, or by his counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudicially affected by the said by-law and who applies to be heard

DATED at the Township of Snowdon this 27th day of May, 1992.

Ernest A. Hills, A.M.C.T.,
Clerk of the Corporation of the Township of Snowdon

COMMUNITY NEWS

McPhail clan toasts its roots

WEST GUILFORD
ELEANOR COOPER

The McPhail reunion was celebrated at the West Guilford Centre this year. It was the 21st reunion of this clan which originated many generations ago in Inverness, Scotland.

In 1967 the parents of the present generations, Frances and Delbert, celebrated their 50th anniversary, having been married in Tisdale, Saskatchewan in 1917. Their family of six were all present except for Ann who lives in Victoria, the other members being Evelyn Lohnes of Aurora, and brothers, Fred, Bert, Weldon and Cecil.

Approximately 90 gathered from various locales

Birthday celebrated

CARNARVON NEWS
ANN MCKAY

Fred Gregory of Ottawa visited with his parents, Jack and Hazel Gregory.

Carrie Cowan is at her cottage for the summer. Her sister Muriel Hewitt of Brampton is with daughter, Bernice Roger, at her cottage. They and other members of the Cowan Clan gathered in Minden to help celebrate the 80th birthday of brother Harry.

Belated 25 Wedding anniversary greetings to Wayne and Dale Toye. Their daughters held a party and dance at the Minden Curling Club where friends and relatives gathered to help celebrate. Congratulations.

On Sunday June 28 the Maple Lake United Church will have its Cemetery Decoration Day at 2:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome, refreshments will be served.

Garnet and Violet Coulter of Campbell River, B.C. have been visiting with relatives for the past few weeks and have left for a trailer trip to the East Coast. They expect to be back in this area sometime in August.

Sunday June 14, guest preacher Rev. Janet Norman talked of the 30th anniversary of the U.C.W. when it changed from the W.A. The children of the Sunday School held their honors and awards the same day.

including Orillia, Hawkestone, Maynooth, Keswick, Innismore, Chatham, and Milton, as well as places nearby: Haliburton, Lochlin, Maple Lake and Minden and having young and old and all ages in between there was lots of fun with games planned from candy-toss, balloon racing, bean-bag toss to horseshoes and nail-driving contests. The pot luck supper looked scrumptious and bountiful and included a huge beautifully decorated cake.

Bob Lohnes keeps track of the long and detailed album and family tree where every union, birth and death is carefully noted. It's a clan they are all obviously proud of and enjoy belonging to (Excuse that ending!) They even had their own flag flying for the day in front of the Centre. It looks as if the McPhails to come are in good hands.

At time of writing the flag had disappeared while supper was on. There had been some difficulty keeping it secured, so it is suspected that when it fell, someone picked it up. The number to call is 286-2807 if you know the whereabouts of the flag.

At Eagle Lake Ethel Upton's birthday was happily spent with brothers and sisters and Ethel's daughter, Betty from Sault Ste. Marie. Betty's family consists of husband Jim Thorne, their children Paul and Jannis with her baby (great grandson for Ethel!) Tyler. From Campbell River, B.C., were Violet and Garnet Coulter, visiting the eastern provinces and Ontario for a nice long holiday, Ada Lepine of Oshawa, Jimmy and Doris Cooper, Bert and Nila Cowen, Verna and Bill Cowen, Alvin and Marge Cowen and Russell and Marilyn Cowen, and Ada's daughter, Louise with her husband John and their son. The party was a surprise for Ethel who deserves a great celebration. We join the family in wishing her many happy returns.

Decorations Sunday for Maple Lake United Church's June 28th at 2 p.m. refreshments will be available in the church basement following the brief service.

Stanhope Library hours are: Tues.: 1-2:30 p.m.; Wed.: 7-8:30 p.m.; and Sat.: 1-3:00 p.m. Summer hours will be posted in July, effective from July 2

Several Guilford residents besides ourselves attended Minden's grand Canadian birthday party on Sunday: Holly Sisson and daughter, Jennifer Wilson with her girls, Hollis and Alex.

Tom Clifford's Seniors Social Club from the Pape Ave. Recreation Centre arrived at the golf course on Monday a.m. by bus, greeted by the pipes as they emerged to enjoy a day around the grounds of the course which they toured on the golf carts. Tom's sister, Dorothy Linkletter, provided coffee and muffins upon their arrival and a bountiful and delicious meal at noon. Prizes were given by the host for lucky numbers drawn. Weather was perfect and the general assumption was that there would be a third annual event taking place next year for the group.

Seniors chip in to paint the Outpost

The Monmouth Seniors' Club had its annual trip on Tuesday June 16th. This year they went by bus to Parry Sound for the boat ride around the 30,000 islands of Georgian Bay. The weather was perfect and the boat was roomy with light lunches if anyone needed refreshments.

On the way home they stopped in Bracebridge for an arranged dinner at the Golden Touch Restaurant.

A special thank you to Shirley Riley of Intra Travel for all her help in arranging the days activities so well; we can heartily recommend her.

The community party at the Red Cross Outpost was a great success, with over 60 people attending. The Heritage Guild sends its sincere thanks to all the painters who painted the entire building in one afternoon. This was a big job and congratulations are in order for all that hard work. Thank you also to all who donated flowers and plants to make a community flower garden and of course to Agnew's Store for providing refreshments to all the hungry workers. We can all be proud of the community involvement in this worth while project.

There was a surprise gathering for Ken Noble at the Tory Hill Community Centre on Saturday June 13th to honor Ken for his thirty years of school bus driving. I hear Ken was really surprised to see so many of his former passengers who came to tell funny stories and reminisce about their school day adventures. Congratulations Ken, this is a real achievement and we wish you many more years of happy driving.

The Superannuated Teachers of Ontario met for their business meeting at the home of Hilda Clark recently. Fifty people sat down to a delicious turkey dinner catered to by Roberta Walsh.

After dinner and business some children came from the school to entertain them with their recorders. Mrs. Sylvia Cameron and Mrs. Vicki Agnew then shared their experiences as Red Cross nurses who were stationed in Wilberforce in the early days. This is the first time the teachers have met in Wilberforce and Hilda was very pleased to have it turn out to be such an enjoyable day for all.

Please remember to come to the Lloyd Watson Centre on July 1st at 11 o'clock for the Canada Day Celebration. The Senior's Choir will lead the singing of Oh Canada while Reg Schofield raises the flag. We would like to have as large a crowd as possible so our O Canada can be heard all over town.

600 ft. point, gives you the privacy you pay for in this two storey R2000 home with 2 fireplaces, dble. car garage, only 2 years old with all the modern luxuries, call for an appointment to view.

CONGRATULATIONS ON A CAREER CHANGE

ALLSAW BRIDGE MARINE

We were able to successfully sell Allsaw Bridge Marine on Lake Kashagawigamog for Karen and Wes Lytle, to let them enjoy their first summer off in years.

We wish them many enjoyable days in their new pace of life.

Allsaw Bridge Marine will experience a name change to Bryson's Marine and we wish them every success in the future.

WATERFRONT HOME $104,900.

Split level, 3 bedrm. home with a double car garage and finished with lots of wood. Includes a main floor laundry and a 4 pc. bath. The lot is 1.7 acres and has 200' of river frntge. that is canoeable and swimmable. Access into Halls Lake is available.

WHAT A VIEW, WHAT A LOT & WHAT A HOME!!!

This home boasts pride of ownership and is truly worth seeing. It has 4 bedrms., 3 baths, 2 full kitchens, laundry, central vac., air conditioning, work shop, carport and a whole lot more that I can't mention or I'll run out of space. It has a magnificent view over the lake and has a beautifully manicured lot to boot. If you enjoy the finer things in life you better plan on looking at this gem, I guarantee you won't be disappointed. $189,900.

AN EXECUTIVE'S DREAM COTTAGE!! Located on Drag Lake just minutes from the village of Haliburton. 3 acres, 400' of lake frntge., 2 car garage, 1,800 sq. ft., 4 bedrms., 2 baths, stone F.P. beautifully finished in wood. Can't be appreciated until viewed. $349,900.

WELL BUILT AND CLOSE TO HALIBURTON

It consists of over 1,800 sq. ft., 3 bedrms., 2 baths (1 ensuite) a sunken L.R., a sep. D.R./Kil. and family room (with a F.P.) and a huge full basement. It is on 2 acres and just outside of Haliburton. $159,900.

CHEAP COTTAGING! NICE IDEA?

This little gem is located just off the main hwy. is surrounded by trees and even crown land abuts it at the back. It is a backsplit with a bsmt., 3 bedrms., oak flooring, and lots of charm. We'll throw in a bathhouse and 100' of frntge. on Stormy Lake too!!! $119,900.

NEAT, CLEAN, PRIVATE & WORTH SEEING

I'm talking about a home in Lochlin on a level, nicely manicured lot, an attached garage, F.P., 3 bedrms., finished rec. room and loads more. Now all I need is a buyer who can appreciate the quality of life. $138,900.

NEW LISTING - $99,900.00

Nicely maintained 2 bedrm. home, full 4 pc. bath and main floor laundry, over 10 acres of land with a newly dug pond, a small stable. Sounds like a hobby farm, and certainly could be, especially at this very attractive price!!!

DRAG LAKE, YEAR ROUND COTTAGE AND ONLY $139,900.

It doesn't take a genius to figure out that a level lot with sand beach, yr. rnd. road, a 900 sq. ft. chalet style cottage with 3 bedrms. and a FP is a good buy. It just takes market knowledge and I have it, so give me a call, I'll help you out.

KENNIS LAKE CHARMER, HOME OR COTTAGE!!

It's hard to find a good cottage with 3 bedrms., lots of wood, insulated, yr. rnd. rd., full 4 pc. bath & on a manicured lot with decking at the water & located all on a very big lake in the area of fine cottages & lakes & listed below $150,000. Isn't it? Wrong! You just found a very charming home or cottage and the best part of all is the price we're asking $149,900.

A LOT OF COTTAGE FOR A LOW PRICE!!

This is truly one of a kind. It shows pride of ownership, lots of character in the point lot with flat rock type frntge, hedges, trees & lawn & level. The cottage has a two tier deck, 3 bedrms., open concept and has just been repainted, new roof (3 yrs.) and is a TURN KEY set up. The picture can't say it all in this property. $139,900.

Meeting turns to picnic for Minden WI

by JEANNE SEARS

Minden Women's Institute members met at the United Church Hall Wed. June 17 for their annual picnic meeting with 15 members, three guests present. Welcome to a new member, Jean Bowron.

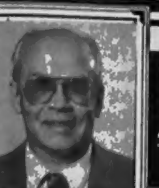

There was a pot luck buffet set up and all enjoyed their lunch and cup of tea. The business was done, including mention of the Bake Sales on July 3 and Aug. 7 at the Gazebo over the bridge. The sale of tickets on our grocery basket is to be done at the first sale.

New programs were given out for the coming year. Pennies for Friendship were taken and collections for the Hall and Card Fun and Irene Moore reported sending 20 cards since the last meeting.

A Quiz was given by the President. Following this Victoria East District President Eleanor Crane was introduced and she spoke briefly and answered our questions.

We appreciated her coming and we showed this in our applause. Some reading and jokes brought a pleasant meeting to a close.
